THE VISITATION OF SHROPSHIRE, 1623.

MORGAN WYN.

Wyrall.*

[ARMS.—Gules, a chevron between three cross-crosslets argent, in chief a lion passant of the same.†]

[ARMS.—Argent, two lions passant-guardant sable, on a chief gules three covered cups or. CREST.—A lion's gamb erased sable, holding a covered cup or.‡]

[John Wyrall of Gresbrooke = . . . da. of . . . Wombwell
[co. York]. of Gresbrooke.

Hugh Wyrall. = . . . da. of . . . Knettisworthie Joane Wyrall.
A [Knottesworth] of M'kett Reasin.

* We cannot clearly trace the connection of this family with Shropshire; but in the records of the Mercers' Guild of Shrewsbury a "Rog' Wyrall" was admitted free of the guild in 1457-8, and paid a fine of xx<sup>s</sup>; also a John Wyrall was churchwarden of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, in 1467-8. (Salop Arch. Soc., viii., pp. 269, 368; see also 'Herald and Genealogist,' vi., p. 328.)

† These are the arms of Wyrall of Byknor, co. Gloucester (Visitations 1583 and 1625). The error in attaching them to this pedigree seems to have arisen at the Shropshire Visitation of 1584. (See Add. MS. 14,314, fo. 13, where, at the top of the sheet, there appears in pencil the word "Yorkse," as if the Herald thought it should have been entered in that county, instead of in Salop.)

‡ This coat and crest were granted, or more probably confirmed, by Barker, 29 Hen. VIII. (1537-8), to "Gervase Wiriall of . . . in com. Ebor." In Edmondson's 'Heraldry,' following Harl. MS. 1359, the chief is sable, and the same is attributed to Wyrall of Loversal, Ebor., in an old MS. at Melbury, in the possession of the Earl of Ilchester. ('Arch. Journal,' xv., p. 171.)

Dear Charles Fudike:

During early 1981 I had some correspondence with Downing Pryor concerning the Pryor & Wynne families and he said that you had written to a cousin at Aberdeen who was interested in genealogy and ~~could~~ who might be able to give me some data on the Wynne family - I presume he did not reply and am wondering if you would give me his name & add.
What I have is quite limited and since my great grandfather Deo Rufus Wynne and wife Amelia Pryor Wynne had the following children -

Elizabeth <sup>b-1855</sup> m. James David Steele - 5 ch - my-
Ovid <sup>b-1863</sup> m. Ada Hoodman (your gr parents)
Ida <sup>b-1866</sup> m. Minna Gillespie no. ch-

I won't go into more details at present but do ask that you send me the cousin's name and address and permission to write him myself. Is he Evelyn's son - I remember seeing her once and also Amelia - both beautiful girls at that time -

I do write to Downing Ward Sturgill Caddie Wynne Wards grand daughter - I last visited her a few years ago

Dear Bob -

"Longtime no write" but I've been busy on some urgent projects like gardening, etc. I wish that the Huntington had provided the missing link + I could write that I found the connection from Wales to America. I would have loved to be able to tie up some loose threads (I found a lot of loose ones)

Enclosed are my notes on everything I did find and a few conclusions and suggestions for further effort. My main suggestion for further study is to check on the shipping lists from points of embarkation in the British Isles for America from about 1700 for a Minor Winn. I can find no information to have him born in Virginia of a previous Winn who married an Elizabeth Minor or an Ann Byrd. I've really gone through reams of material + find that any connection with the Byrds is a big lie or mistake. There are many many Winns in Virginia during the 16 + 17 hundreds + records are so fragmented that connecting with the earliest settlers of 1611 or so, seems very remote. And - I did go through that place like a vacuum cleaner. There is too much material on the Byrds to have not had a marriage recorded or a will proved.

Really the Brock Collection was disappointing because it was so much concerned with material relating to the defense of Richmond during the civil war + data on the local railroads. Really, I went through hundreds of documents that were absolute trivia!!!

Also I found that some material had been moved + was not in the Box listed in the catalogue.

Down in the basement I went through every county and parish register that they have on Virginia. I did not take time to list them all - only the ones that had Wynn listed. (I should have made a list but I was trying to cover so much

The material from the journal of George Willis Winn maybe of some help. His ancestor Thomas who married Elizabeth Dabney is listed in the D.A.R. book as a Lieut.
during the revolution. I don't know who his parents were - do you? Nowhere did I find any material on the family of Thomas Hicks Wynne, which rather surprised me.

How are things progressing with your work?
Any big finds lately? I feel really frustrated to find so many stray items + not one to tie anything
I care about together. I don't think I told you that I donated several papers from my uncle by marriage to the Huntington. There is no direct heir to inherit them + I would hate for them to be lost because they are fascinating letters from 1838 to 1875. Much early Americana + some interesting material on China where this uncle's father was American Consul at Amoy about 1875-7. The curator of manuscripts was delighted to have them + I felt it was a good place for them to be + continue to be useful + enjoyed. Any further material on my family or the Wynn's that our daughter doesn't want to keep (and I have several reference books on New England + Maryland that were my grandmother's) I will send to the Los Angeles County Library Genealogy Dept. I really am tired of giving shelf space to books I've already gone through as my mother did before me + I do feel even incomplete information such as I have on the Wynn's is better than anything there now. It will probably take me years to get around to any of this but our house is so full of every sort of thing, I do at least, have good intentions.

Again - my regrets for being so slow + for not being able to find more. Give our regards to your family please + do write when you can.

Sincerely
Carol M. Wynn

7-9-74

P.S. I didn't put this in the mail promptly because I didn't have a proper envelope. In the meantime I had an idea which may or may not be to your liking or have any value at all. It was my thought that <sup>by</sup> putting some of the basic material we have on the Wynn family of Wales + Virginia in a few large genealogy libraries like

S. A. County Library ~~and~~ would the Family Assn. attract more members & more sources of detail.

[Excuse my garbled sentence - the phone rang & I did not finish my thought properly]. If the facts of the family in Wales of 1550 - 1700 were outlined plus the known emigrants to America in the early years plus disclaiming the connection with Sir John & stating that there was still great question over Minors' parents maybe we could flush out some new sources. I only mean a few mimeographed pages in a folder & at the back could be your name & address. If anyone is interested or can help at least they could get in touch with you. I think I would send one copy to the library in Wales too. I'll bet it would be accepted and used somewhere along the line. I feel certain it would be here in Los Angeles, but I'm also sure it might bring a lot of correspondence that would be time consuming without bringing in any really valuable information. Do ~~it~~ tell me what you think!

Carol

P.P.S. My next project is to remodel our kitchen, which I have been avoiding for at least 10 years. The wall paper is crumbling & the tile is so worn it looks absolutely unsanitary. I hate getting the house torn up again but I can't think of any other way to get the job done.

ANNALS, &c., OF WALES.

DENBIGHSHIRE

(SIR DINBYCH).

THE district included under this name was constituted a county by the 27th Henry VIII., A.D. 1536. Denbighshire is therefore, as a county, about two and a half centuries younger than its neighbours, Carnarvonshire and Merionethshire, which were made counties by the statutes of Rhuddlan, A.D. 1283. Even Flintshire, which stood nearer the lordships out of which Denbighshire was formed, had been made a county by those same statutes, leaving the intermediate lands of Perveddwlad, or the "four cantrefs" of Rhyfoniog, and the Hiraethog hills, the Vale of Clwyd, Ystrad, and Rhôs, which had been the subject of so much contention between Prince Llewelyn ap Gruffydd and the English king, in an exceptional condition, under the Marcher families of Lacy, De Spencer, Mortimer, &c. Under Henry the lands of the Marchers all along the borders, as well as these cantrefs, were put under new regulations, and out of the latter Denbighshire was created a county, with Denbigh as chief town.

The etymology of Denbigh is uncertain. The Welsh form, Din-bych, although clear as to the first syllable (din—a hill, or high place of strength), leaves some obscurity on the second. It is probably bach, small, to mark the size of this eminence as compared with the higher surrounding hills of Moel Famau, Moel Enlli, &c.—an idea confirmed by the modern popular pronunciation of this syllable—Dinbach.

SECTION I.—PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION OF DENBIGHSHIRE.

This county is of a most irregular form, measuring in greatest length, from Llandrillo, near the Little Orme's Head, to Llandedwyn on the river Tanat, about 41 miles; and in greatest breadth, from the border of Cheshire, near Eaton Hall, to its extreme margin near Llanfyllin, about 30 miles. In superficial measurement it contains 635 square miles. Its population as shown by the last five censuses has been as follows:—

Total population of Denbighshire in 1831	...	...	...	82,800;
Do. 1841	...	...	...	89,291;
Do. 1851	...	...	...	92,582;
Do. 1861	...	...	...	100,785;
Do. 1871	...	...	...	104,266;

showing a steady increase throughout the fifty years. In 1801 the population was only 60,352, and in 1821, 76,511; so that in the present century the population has nearly doubled.

The great surface features of this county are the Vale and River Clwyd, and the investiture of hill ranges which surrounds them. In ancient and in modern history the Hiraethog mountains, stretching as an irregular range of moderate eminences from the sea at the Orme's Head, forming the watersheds to the Conwy on the west, the Elwy and Aled (which flow together from Pont-y-gwyddel towards the Clwyd, joining it near Pengwern) and other smaller streams on the east, to Corwen and Llangollen, have been famous. The principal summits are Llan Elian, Moel Eithin (1,660 ft.), Cader Ddinmel, &c. On the other side of the Vale of Clwyd, separating it from Flintshire, a chain of mountains, also commencing near the sea, near Mostyn, travels up towards the Llangollen hills, exhibiting on the way considerable eminences at Tremeirchion, Moel y Parc, Moel Arthur (1,491 ft.), Moel Fammau (1,845 ft.), Moel Enlli; and stopping near Llandegla, allows there a passage for the little river Alun, on its way to water Flintshire, and for the high road from Chester to the west. On the other side of this passage they are confronted by the bold eminence of Cyrn y Brain (1,858 ft.), part of a range which crosses this narrow part of Denbighshire nearly at right angles with the axis of the Vale of Clwyd, and meets the Hiraethog range towards Corwen. The whole of these series of hills may be considered as forming a horse-shoe boundary and protection to the great and fertile basin of the Clwyd and its accompanying districts—the ancient comots of Dulas, Aled, Llanerch, and Rhuthyn,—lands which the rapacious Lords Marchers were not loth to appropriate, or Prince Llewelyn prepared to yield up without a pang. To the S.E. of the curve of our horseshoe we have the mineral district of Rhos and Rhuabon, with the fair and productive country stretching thence to Wrexham and Holt, along the river Dee, whose course from Llangollen to Holt, a distance of some forty miles, is marked by scenes of fertility and beauty not often surpassed.

This part of Denbighshire, as well as the Vale of Clwyd, has been famous in all times for residences of the chief gentry. Here is the great demesne of Wynnstay, the new mansion of which, scarcely yet finished, replaces the noble structure destroyed by fire in 1858, when a large amount of valuable property, articles of art and vertu, MSS. and books perished. The splendidly wooded park of Wynnstay, some eight miles in circumference, one of the finest for situation and tasteful ornamentation in the country, is washed on the southern side by the Dee, passing here through scenes of the richest luxuriance. The park contains many magnificent specimens of elm, chestnut, and oak, one of the last of which measures some forty feet in girth, and is reputed the oldest in the Principality. An avenue above a mile long, flanked by a variety of these stately trees, leads up from the chief entrance gates at Rhuabon to the mansion. From a great distance the "Waterloo Column," 100 feet high, commemorating the great battle, and the fall of a son of Wynnstay who was present in it, and bearing the striking inscription—

MATER EHEU! SUPERSTES,

WYNNSTAY—SIDE VIEW.

The new mansion, replete with all the appointments of a sumptuous residence, is a costly edifice in the Renaissance style, combining in its external outline some of the features of a

French château, and in its spacious stateliness is in keeping with the history and station of the noble family whose name has been so long associated with Wynnstay. (See further, Williams Wynn of Wynnstay.)

To the south of Wynnstay is situated Brynkinallt, the seat of Lord Arthur Hill Trevor, who succeeded to it on the death of the late Viscount Dungannon when he assumed the name of Trevor. Brynkinallt was the home of the ancient family of Trevor, among whom the somewhat eccentric and notorious Sir John Trevor, Master of the Rolls, Keeper of the Seal, and Speaker of the Commons under Charles II. and William III., is the best known, though not of most respected memory. (See Trevor of Brynkinallt.) At this place, Wellington, when young, often spent his vacations, his mother, the Countess of Mornington, being a Trevor. The mansion is situated on a finely wooded slope, commanding extensive views.

Historically more distinguished than any of the surrounding residences is Chirk Castle, on the brow of a hill of the Berwyn range, admirably situated, not only for defence in the

The site rises between two depressions of equal beauty—the exquisite valley of the Ceiriog to the south, and the wider and grander valley of the Dee to the north, the demesne of Chirk Castle, intersected by Offa's Dyke, reaching from the one to the other.

The Wests trace their origin to a period coeval with the reign of Edward II., with whom Sir Thomas West was in much favour. The direct line of the house of Delawarr, several of whose members had won favour both in the council and in the camp, terminated with the life of Thomas La Warr, who, forsaking the profession of arms, became a priest, and was for some time Rector of Manchester. The ancient barony of Delawarr (cr. 1568; earlier creation by writ, 1342) then devolved upon Sir Reginald West, and the title of Earl was conferred upon one of his descendants in 1761. The Wests were strong supporters of the House of Hanover, in acknowledgment of which fact this peerage was bestowed by George III. They have intermarried with families of high rank—the Bedfords, Cecils, and Stanleys, the most recent event of this kind being the marriage (1871) of Edward Henry, Earl of Derby, with Mary Catherine, Dowager Marchioness of Salisbury, who is a dau. of the 5th Earl of Delawarr.

Mr. Cornwallis West belongs to a junior branch of this house, being the great-grandson of John, 2nd Earl Delawarr. His paternal grandmother was Maria, dau. and co-h. of Richard Myddelton, of Chirk Castle. On the maternal side he is descended from the Whitbys of Cresswell Hall, Stafford, his grandfather on the maternal side having been Capt. John Whitby, R.N., one of eleven children. His sister Lucy married E. Berkeley Portman, father of the present Lord Portman.

John West, 2nd Earl Delawarr, a peer of the United Kingdom, had a third son,—

Hon. Frederick West, who m. as his second wife (1798) Maria, dau. and co-h. of Richard Myddelton, Esq., of Chirk Castle (see Myddelton-Biddulph, Chirk Castle), and had a son,—

2. WILLIAM CORNWALLIS, now of Ruthin Castle, as above shown.

Note.—Ruthin Old Castle, part of the ruins of which still exist, has already been noticed in the descriptive notes on Denbighshire (pp. 371, 383). The modern castle was partly erected by Frederick R. West, Esq., in 1850-1, and has been completed by his successors.

LINEAGE.

When the Deputy Herald, Lewis Dwnn, made his visitation of Wales (temp. Elizabeth), the forefathers of the Garthwin and Dyffryn Aled family were called of Llanfair Dolhaiarn (now Talhaia n) and Melai, then represented by "William Wyn, sonne and heire to William Wyn, Esquier," and so on through David Llwyd ap y Penwyn, &c., to Enethan ap Jasseth, in all seventeen generations. William's grandfather, John of Melai, had m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Puleston, and widow of Sir John Salusbury, of Lleweni, which indicates the high standing of the family at the time.

William Wyn, or in more modern form, Wynne, of Melai, had m. Mary, dau. and co-h. of Sir Richard Clough, of Plas Clough (with whom he had Maenan Abbey), and had by her a son, John Wynne, whose 2nd son,—

The arms ascribed to Marchudd were—"Gu. a Saracen's head, ppr;" but Ednyfed Fychan, owing to a great exploit he performed in putting to death three English warriors, was presented by his prince with a new coat—"Gu. a chevron ermine between 3 Saxons' heads ensanguined."

LINEAGE.

This ancient and noble family unites two houses which have come down from purely Cymric sources. The Wynns were of the princely line of Owain Gwynedd, himself directly descending from Rhodri the Great, King of North Wales, and subsequently of all Wales, who d. in a battle against the Danes, invaders of his country, A.D. 876. The Williams family came from a venerable stock in Anglesey, holding a position of consideration there in the 13th century, seated at Bryn Gwallanog and Chwaen Issa. From them sprang Sir William Williams, Speaker of the House of Commons temp. Charles II., created a baronet by that king. The arms of Wynn are the arms borne by Prince Owain Gwynedd, 12th cent.

The first of the line of Wynn who adopted and settled that surname was John ap Meredydd ap Jevan, who was called John Wynn. The family were long seated as proprietors of the soil in Eifionydd, Carnarvonshire. "The well-known old places, Cesaigyfarch and Ystumcedig, belonged to them; and Meredydd ap Jevan, father of John Wynn, was the first to remove to the Vale of Conwy, having purchased there the lands of Gwydir, a place which eventually became famous as the principal seat of the Wynns. (See Gwydir House, p. 313.) The family in its various branches exhibited the primitive features of a clan, and they were collectively called Tylwyth Sion ap Meredydd, "the family or clan of John ap Meredydd." (See Areland, Lord Gwydir.) The grandson of John Wynn was—

SIR JOHN WYNN, of Gwydir, Kt. and Bart. (b. 1553, d. 1626), whose name, as historian of the house, and as a man of great force of character, territorial possession, and influence in his day, is known to all Welshmen. (See Wynn of Gwydir.) He m. Sidney, dau. of Sir William Gerrard, whom Lewis Dwnn denominates "Lord of Downser" (Lord of Downshire), in Ireland, by whom he had a large family. Sir Richard dying without male issue, the title fell to his kinsman,—

It was here that the junction took place between the two houses of Williams and Wynn. Watkin Williams, on succeeding to the estates of Wynnstay, assumed the additional surname Wynn. On the death of his father he became Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, and the first of that name; was M.P. for the co. of Denbigh. His first wife, Anne, dau. and co-h. of Edward Vaughan, Esq., of Llwydiarth, brought him Llangedwyn, still part of the family estates of Wynnstay. By his 2nd wife, Frances Shakerley, of Holme, Cheshire, he had two sons. Sir Watkin (who was killed by a fall from his horse, 1749), was succ. by his eldest son,—

Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, 4th Bart. of Wynnstay, who m., 1st, 1769, the Lady Henrietta Somerset, dau. of Charles, 4th Duke of Somerset, who d. in the same year; 2ndly, 1771, Charlotte, dau. of the Right Hon. George Grenville, by whom he had three sons (and three daus.),—

LINEAGE.

This family derives its descent from Tudor Trevor and Brochwel Ysgythrog, Prince of Powys. The before-mentioned Sarah Yale (who was through her mother, Frances Jones, of Llwyn-Onn, first cousin of the late Thomas Parry Jones-Parry, of Madryn and Llwyn Onn, vide Jones-Parry of Madryn), was lineally descended from Osborn Fitzgerald, called by the Welsh Osborn Wyddel.

Ellis ap Gruffydd ap Einion, of Corsygedol (2nd son), according to Lewys Dwnn (Herald. Visit. of Wales) sixth from Osborn Wyddel (13th cent.), m. Margaret, dau. and h. of Jenkyn ap Ieuan ap Llewelyn ap David Llwyd, and in right of his wife became possessor of Pläs yn Yale (or rather Iâl). This was about 1480.

John Yale, of Pläs yn Yale, grandson of Ellis ap Gruffydd, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Mostyn of Mostyn, and his gr. grandson,—

Thomas Yale, Esq., of Pläs yn Yale, had as wife a dau. of Humphrey Hughes, of Gwerclas, and his gr. grandson was—

The Rev. John Yale, of Pläs yn Yale, who m. Frances, dau. of John Jones, Esq., of Llwyn-Onn, uniting thus two ancient families. He was succeeded at Pläs yn Yale by his only surviving son, the Rev. John Yale, and he, on his death s. p., by his only sister,—

Sarah Yale, of Pläs yn Yale. "She was the last of the direct line of the family. By her will, which was proved in 1821, she entailed the Pläs yn Yale estate upon William, 4th son of Thomas Parry Jones-Parry, Esq., of Madryn, M.P., grand-nephew of Miss Yale's mother, who, in compliance with the above will, assumed the name of Yale."—Meyrick.

William Parry Yale, Lieut.-Col. in the army, J. P., Sheriff for Denbighshire, 1833, m., but d. s. p. in 1867, and was succ. by his nephew,—

JAMES CORBET YALE, Esq., now of Pläs yn Yale, as above.

Note.—Yale, till recent times spelt in the Welsh form Ial, is the name of the lordship (embracing five parishes), in which Pläs yn Yale is situated. Among distinguished members of this family may be named Elihu Yale, Governor of Madras, afterwards Governor of Mass., N. America, where he founded Yale Coll.; d. 1721, and was buried in Wrexham Churchyard, where there is a monument inscribed with a curious epitaph to his memory; Dr. Thomas Yale, Chancellor of Matthew Parker, Archbishop of Canterbury; Roger Lloyd ap Ellis, called "Mr. Ellis," Secretary to Cardinal Wolsey.

He has been seconded in his schemes of improvement by the present Lord Penrhyn, and the result is that the country around Penrhyn Castle to some distance has good roads, good tillage, judiciously laid plantations, comfortable cottages and farmhouses, and a general aspect of happiness not often to be met with in such a region. But the means for the accomplishment of so noble a work have come forth a hundred times over from the rocks of slate!

Another mansion of historic interest photographed for our pages is that of Gwydir, near Llanrwst. This was the home of the Wynnes (see Wynne of Gwydir), and this building, or part of it, is said to have been erected about the year 1558 by John Wynne ap Meredydd, whose initials used to be over the gateway. But there have been great alterations and changes, and it is perilous to say much of the date of the structure. The spot is redolent of antiquity and love of literature. Here Sir John Wynn, author of the History of the Gwydir Family, lived, mused, and wrote: here he died, A.D. 1626, at the age of 73, after a life of pain and labour. Of the race of Owain Gwynedd, and of large possessions, he was a man of great mark, and his family for generations before and after him were of great influence in North Wales. The name was transferred from Gwydir through John, the son of his tenth son, Sir Henry of Wynnstay, and lives still at Wynnstay and other places; but the direct line terminated in an heiress, Mary, daughter of Sir Richard, great-grandson of the great Sir John Wynn, of Gwydir, who married Lord Willoughby, first Duke of Ancaster, and carried the Gwydir estates to that family (see Aveland, Lord Gwydir).

• Sir John Wynn, of Gwydir, was a true and unsophisticated Welshman—blunt, irascible, honest and simple, as the chief of his race. He made friends and made enemies. His quarrel with Bishop William Morgan, of St. Asaph, is memorable, made sharp words on both sides, and, as may be supposed, had reference to "temporalities." The bishop would not confirm a lease of Church lands held by Sir John, and tells Sir John that his "motives" that "the lease on the Rectory of Llan Rwt" should be "confirmed" are "dyverse," substantially naughty, and not to be encouraged; for though he says he "had purchased the lease deere," that the "adjoyning of Tybrith" had cost him much, and that "the rent reserved was as much as the Rectorye was worth," and moreover that he hoped to find the bishop such to him as he had been to the bishop, &c., the bishop flatly declares, "You're request ys suche, that in grauntyng yt I shold prove myself an dishonest, unconscionable, and irreligious man, and ye a sacrilegious robber of my Church, a perfidious spoyler of my diocese, and an unnaturall hynder of preachers and good scholers. . . . I pray God that your greeffe of myssynge be not Ahab's greeffe for Naboth's vineyard," &c.

Sir John Wynn was not the man to receive such ungentle thrusts without returning them. The fire burns within, and his utterances are hot. They begin in Latin, and for authority quote Scripture:—"Hominibus ingratis loquimini, lapides. The sower [I, Sir John] went out to sow, and some of his seed fell in stonie ground, where it wythered, because hitt could take noe roote. The seede (my kindness) was good, but the land naught. I may justly say soe by you. I have in all showed my selfe your ffreinde, in soe much as yf I had not pointed you the waye with my finger (whereof I have yet good testimonye) you had beene styll Vycar of Llanrhayder. You pleade conscience when you should geve, and make no bones to receave curtesie off your ffreindes." Then comes argument, then another thrust:—"Neither was the losse of the thyng that I regard a dodkyn, but your unkynde dealinge. Hitt shall lesen me to expect noe sweete fruite of a sower stocke. Your verball love [the bishop had ended his letter in sweet phrase] I esteeme as nothings; and I make noe doubt (wth God's good favour) to lyve to be able to pleasure you as much as you shall me, et e contra. You byd me thanke God for His meny benefytts towards me. . . . In truth I did much thanke Him in mynde to see you preferred to the place you are in, as yf you had beene my owne brother: but that I recall, for I never expect good wyll of you, nor good torne by you.—John Wyn, of Gwyder, the house that did you and yours good. 24 Febr., 1603." To a friend, "Mr. Martyn," the bishop writes, in allusion to this letter, and especially to the taunt of patronage, "I confesse that Mr. Wyn thearein shewed greate love (as then I thought) to me; but (as nowe I fynde) to hym selfe, hopynge to make a stave of me to dryve preacher's partydges to hys netts" (see Yorke's Royal Tribes, p. 139, &c.). Upon the whole, this unseemly passage of arms left little advantage to the Gwydir baronet.

Turning round towards the west, the view from Snowdon sweeps the whole of the isle of Anglesey, lying on the sea, cut off from the Arfon mainland by the mere streak of the straits; passes over Carnarvon, with its great castle, and yonder espies the finest church in North Wales, not excepting the two cathedrals—the church of Clynnog-fawr. In mid-distance the woods of Glynllifon cover a great patch of country, and remind us of another of the ancient Carnarvonshire householders. The present owner of Glynllifon is Lord Newborough.

Glynllifon, named from its situation in the Glyn or Vale of Llifon, is a superb mansion, with every appointment appertaining to a great house, situated in a spacious park surrounded by a ring-fence of several miles in circumference, and containing a menhir, a fort, a mausoleum, a museum of ancient armour, &c. The country is rather bleak and quiet, but in the near of Vaenol, Carnarvonshire.

J. P. and D. L. for the co. of Carnarvon ; son of Robert G. Duff, Esq., of Wellington Lodge, Isle of Wight, by his wife, Mary Astley; b. 1848; assumed the name Assheton-Smith in addition to that of Duff on succeeding to property on the decease of Mrs. Assheton-Smith, widow of his great-uncle, the late well-known Mr. Assheton-Smith, a great slate-quarry proprietor, of Vaenol.

Residence: Vaenol, near Bangor, N. Wales.

Note.—Vaenol was long ago a place of celebrity, as the residence of the family of Williams. William Williams, of Vaenol, was sheriff of the co. Carn. in 1599, 1608; Thomas Williams in 1627; and Sir William Williams, Bart., in 1640. His successor in the third degree, Sir W. Williams, Bart., by his will dated 25th June, 1695, bequeathed the estate of Vaenol to Sir Bourcher Wrey of Tavistock and his sons, then unto King William III. Queen Anne gave the estate to the Right Hon. John Smith, M.P., and his son, Capt. W. Smith, gave it to Thomas Assheton, Esq., of Ashley, Cheshire, who assumed the name of Smith, in whose family it still remains. On the death of this Sir W. Williams in 1695 the baronetcy became extinct. (See Williams of Cochevillian.) The mansion stands in an extensive park (recently surrounded by a high wall), on the delightful banks of the Menai Straits.

Second Baron Aveland (cr. 1856) and 4th Lord Gwydir (cr. 1796). Only son of the late Gilbert John Heathcote, 1st Baron Aveland, by the Hon. Succeeded to the Gwydir title and estates on the death of his late uncle, Alberic, 20th Baron Willoughby D'Eresby in 1870. The Barony of Willoughby D'Eresby, heritable by heirs male and female alike, fell into abeyance on the death of the last named possessor, until in Nov., 1871, her Majesty the Queen was pleased to terminate the abeyance in favour of the Dowager Lady Aveland, mother of Lord Aveland and Baron Gwydir. This barony carries with it the hereditary Great Chamberlainship of England. Her ladyship's son, therefore, whose present titles are of recent origin, is prospective heir to one of the most ancient and honourable baronies in this kingdom, created by writ, A.D. 1313.

THE GWYDIR LINEAGE.

The celebrated Sir John Wynn of Gwydir (see Gwydir, p. 313) was of the line of Rhodri Mawr, King of Wales (d. 847), through Owain Gwynedd, prince of North Wales. He was lord of a great district in the Snowdonian country, the original seat of the clan to which he belonged being in the comot of Eifonydd, of which Ystumcedig was a part. Meredydd ap Ifan ap Robert (d. 1525; see Mon. Llanrwst Church), removed from Eifonydd to Nant Conwy, resided at Dolwyddelan Castle, and bought Gwydir (said to be Gwaed-dir, "the bloody tract," from a battle fought there by Llywarch Hen, in the 7th cent.), and built a house there. His son was John, or Sion, and the clan of Nant Conwy, Cesailgyfarch, and Ystumcedig, went by the name of Tylwyth Sion ap Meredydd—"the household or clan of John ap Meredydd." John's grandson was Sir John Wynn, above named, Kt., and afterwards Bart., the well-known author of the History of the Gwydir Family, whose grandfather, John, seems to be in reality the first of the line to bear the name of Wyn (see Dwnn), although on the monument in Llanrwst Church his gr. gr. father Meredydd has the name "Meredyth Wyn, Armiger," given him.

Town Address: Athenæum Club.

Arms (the arms of the see): Gu., a bend

Note.—The see of Bangor had its origin in a college or fraternity of monks established here by Deiniol (after whose name the rectory of Bangor is still called), about A.D. 525. After some years the collegium was raised to the dignity of a principal church, having an over-seeing function in reference to other congregations, and Deiniol was called Episcopus overseer, or bishop). This Bangor, formerly called Bangor-fawr, is not to be confounded with Bangor Iscoed, near Wrexham, the seat of the great college and monastery which withstood the assumptions of Austin, and experienced in consequence such cruel persecution at his hands. The cathedral church built by Deiniol was destroyed by the Saxons in 1071, but was speedily rebuilt. The wars between the Welsh and the Henrys brought frequent injury upon the edifice; it was destroyed by fire in 1402, during the insurrection under Owen Glyndwr, and was for a long time in a state of ruin. The present tower, which is not of great height, and the nave, were built in 1532, by Bishop Skeffington; the choir had been built about 1500; further improvements were made by Bps.

Warren and Majendie. The cathedral is now (1871) undergoing extensive repairs, owing to which we have been unable to obtain a photograph of it suitable for our purpose.

Vaughan, Bulkeley, Rowlands, Morgan, are names known among Bishops of Bangor who were natives of Wales. Bishop Campbell, though of Scotch origin, has learned the language of the country where he has been called upon to serve the Church. His immediate predecessors were Bethell (d. 1859), Majendie, Randolph, Cleaver (d. 1807).

estate passed to his brother EDWARD WYNN (1681-1755). He had completed a distinguished career in Jesus College, Oxford (matriculating 18 Dec. 1698, at the age of 17, B.A. 1702, M.A. 1705, and B. and D.C.L. 15 March 1710/11), and had secured the office of chancellor of the diocese of Hereford in 1707 from his uncle, bishop Humphreys. Fortunately, his mother resided at Bodewryd (she d. 31 Aug. 1723), and he was able to pursue his career and studies in ecclesiastical law, becoming an advocate in Doctors Commons in 1712, without being overtaken by the worries of his patrimonial estate. He gave the diocese a life of devoted service, holding office until within a year of his death. In 1748 he endowed a sermon in Hereford cathedral on the birthday of bishop Humphreys (24 Nov.). In addition to his interest in canon law, in administration, and in the history of his adopted diocese, he was a progressive landowner, who turned his familiarity with contemporary agricultural developments in Herefordshire to good use on his Anglesey estate. He is reputed to have been the first to grow turnips in the island, in 1714. He was, undoubtedly, one of the chief men of Anglesey in the first half of the 18th cent. His judgement and accurate knowledge of the law commanded respect, though the Morris brothers are not always complimentary towards him in their correspondence with one another, but it must be remembered that they were of the Meyrick party, while Wynne was a firm supporter of the Bulkeleyys. He is traditionally credited with having patronised Goronwy Owen (q.v.) in his youth, and it is certain that the youthful poet transcribed documents for him during the Christmas vacation of 1739. Edward Wynne d. 30 June, and was buried 4 July 1755. His children by his wife Anne, daughter and heiress of John Lloyd of Plas Einion, in the Vale of Clwyd, had all died in infancy. An estrangement had grown between the parents, but they had been reconciled before the wife's death on 29 July 1739. The Bodewryd estate passed to Margaret Owen, heiress of Penrhos, granddaughter of Edward Wynne's sister Anne (d. 1748), who had m. Robert Owen of Penrhos. She m. Sir John Stanley, bt., in 1763 (see the article on the Stanley family).

WYNN and OWEN families, of Glyn (Glyn Cywarch), Mer., and Brogryntyn, Salop.

This family traces its descent from Osborn Wyddel ('Osborn the Irishman,' q.v.), a member of the Geraldine clan, EINION, living 16 Oct. 1380, and fifth in descent from Osborn, m. Tanglwst, daughter of Rhydderch ab Ieuan, m. Tangelwst, daughter of Gogerddan, Cards. He was succeeded by IFAN (living 6 Oct. 1427), RHYYS, and IFAN (living 4 March 1513), who m. Laura, daughter of Richard Bamville, of the Wirral, Cheshire, probably before 1 Oct. 1499. This Ifan, who is also referred to as IEUAN AP RHYYS, had released to him certain lands which became part of the Glyn estate 'which are stated to have been previously pledged by Richard Bamville' (W. W. E. Wynne, Pedigree of . . . Wynne of Peniarth, 1872). 'Through this marriage, Glyn, and much of the property in the parish of Llanvihangel y Traethau, came into the family, but probably there was no mansion house at Glyn at so early a period' (Wynne, op. cit.). JOHN AP IEUAN, the heir of this marriage, and descended as of Glyn, was living on 27 Nov.

1545. His son, ROBERT WYN AP JOHN (d. 1589), m. (probably in 1544) Katherine, daughter of Ellis ap Maurice of Glennannau, Caerns., and was the father of MAURICE AP ROBERT WYNN (d. between 9 Feb. 1609/10 and 16 April 1610), who was escheator of the county of Merioneth upon 19 Oct. 1604. It was by his second wife, Annes, daughter of Robert ap Richard of Llecheiddior, Caerns., that Maurice was the father of WILLIAM WYNN (d. 1658), high sheriff of Merioneth in 1618 and again in 1637. In 1611 William Wynn m. Catherine (d. 23 Feb. 1638/9), daughter of William Lewis Anwyl, of Park, Llanfrothen—see Anwyl family of Park. It was this William Wynn who built the present house of Glyn; for details, see the article by lord Harlech in Journal of the Merioneth Hist. Soc., i, 9-11.

The heir of William Wynn and Catherine (Anwyl) was ROBERT WYNN (d. 1670), of Glyn and Ystumcegid, high sheriff of Merioneth in 1656-7 and 1668-9. By his wife, Catherine (d. 1675), daughter and co-heiress of Robert Owen of Ystumcegid, he was the father of OWEN WYNN (d. 1682/3), of Glyn and Ystumcegid, who m. Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Robert Mostyn, of Nant, Flints., the issue of the marriage being two daughters, (1) MARGARET (d. 1727), who m. Sir ROBERT OWEN (d. 1698), of Glennannau and Brogryntyn who was Member of Parliament for Merioneth, 1681-85, and was elected for Caernarvon boroughs in 1698 (Sir Robert Owen was grandson of Sir John Owen of Glennannau, 1600-66 q.v., the Royalist soldier; through his mother, Catherine, daughter and heiress of Lewis Anwyl, Park, Llanfrothen, he inherited the Anwyl library, included in which was a copy of a Shakespeare 'Folio,' lately at Brogryntyn), and (2) Catherine (d. 1700), who became the first wife of Peter Pennant, of Bychton, Flints.

Lady (Margaret) Owen and her husband were neighbours of Ellis Wynne (q.v.), author of Gwledigaethau y Bardd Cuse, who wrote to the husband on 16 Sept. 1697 soliciting his help in regard to difficulties which had arisen in regard to the estate of the writer's uncle, John Jones, of Uwchlwr Coed, and, on 9 Nov. 1706, to lady (Margaret) Owen, by then a widow, asking her and her son, William Owen, to let him and his parishioners of Llandanwg have the old Shire Hall at Harlech for conversion into a chapel-of-ease; both letters are in the Brogryntyn collection in N.L.W. — see Ellis Wynn: Daugamllyddiant, published by the National Library in 1934.

The heir of Sir Robert Owen and lady (Margaret) Owen was WILLIAM OWEN (d. 1768) who m. Mary, daughter of Henry Godolphin, dean of S. Paul's and provost of Eton (see Godolphin papers in Brogryntyn collection in N.L.W., and an account in Etoniana, 1939), leaving as (eventual) heiress a daughter, another MARGARET OWEN, who m. Owen Ormsby (d. 1804), of Willowbrook, Co. Sligo, Ireland (he, incidentally, had a Welsh mother, Hannah Wynne, a descendant of the Wynns of Gwydir); the issue of the marriage was MARY JANE ORMSBY (d. 1869), heiress of Glyn, Glennannau, and Brogryntyn. By her marriage (1815) to William Gore (d. 1860), Mary Jane Ormsby became the mother of JOHN RALPH ORMSBY-GORE (1816-76), who was created baron Harlech 11 Jan. 1876.

WYNN family, of Gwydir, Caerns.

The Wynns of Gwydir belonged to a stock which was engaged during the 14th and 15th cents. in establishing the nuclei of small estates in the free townships of Penyfed and Pennant in Eifionydd. About the beginning of the 14th cent., Dafydd ap Gruffydd of Nantconwy (claiming descent from Owain Gwynedd) m. Eva, daughter and heiress of Gruffydd Fychan, one of the coheirs of 'Gwely Wyrion Gruffydd' in Penyfed. The descendants of this union are found at Gesail Gyfarch, Ystumcegid, Glennannau, and Brynkir. During the revolt of Owain Glyndwr (q.v.), Ieuan ap Maredudd ap Hywel ap Dafydd ap Gruffydd of Cefn-y-fan (later called Ystumcegid) and Gesail Gyfarch supported the crown and d. in 1403 while defending Caernarvon castle against Glyndwr's forces; his brother, Robert, was one of Glyndwr's followers and received a pardon from Henry, prince of Wales, in 1408. As a result, possibly, of this division of loyalties, the bulk of the family possessions remained in the possession of the line of Ieuan ap Maredudd until 1463; in that year, the lands were partitioned and Gesail Gyfarch fell to the share of Ieuan ap Robert ap Maredudd (1437-68). He was a Lancastrian and died of the plague at Gesail Gyfarch in 1468. His son, Maredudd, to avoid implication in the feuds of his kinsmen in Eifionydd, purchased the lease of Dolwyddelan castle about 1489; he later built Penannen, and finally purchased Gwydir from Dafydd ap Hywel Coetmor about 1500.

His son, JOHN (WYN) AP MAREDUDD (d. 9 July 1559), succeeded to his father's lands at Gwydir, Nantconwy, Dolwyddelan, and Llanfrothen. (Gesail Gyfarch went to his half-brother, Humphrey). He rebuilt Gwydir in 1555 and was Member of Parliament for Caernarvonshire, 1551-3, and high sheriff for Caernarvonshire, 1544-5, 1553-4, and 1556-7. The career of his son, MAURICE WYNN (d. 18 Aug. 1580), was similar. The first to adopt the name 'Wynn' as a surname, he was Member of Parliament for Caernarvonshire, 1553, 1554, 1559, and 1563-7, and high sheriff of Caernarvonshire, 1555, 1570, and 1581.

The best known member of the family was Maurice's son, (Sir) JOHN WYNN (1553-1627). A student of All Souls, Oxford, in 1570, he was at Furnival's Inn in 1572 and at the Inner Temple in 1576. He appears to have lived in London until his father's death in 1580, although he may have travelled abroad. After inheriting Gwydir, he entered vigorously into the public life of North Wales; he was high sheriff of Caernarvonshire, 1587-8, 1603, of Merioneth, 1588-9 and 1600-01, and of Denbighshire, 1606-7, and Member of Parliament for Caernarvonshire, 1586-7. He was knighted in 1606, appointed a member of the Council of the Marches in 1608, and created a baronet in 1611. Unscrupulous, acquisitive, litigious, and hot-tempered, he was the leader of the dominant party in Caernarvonshire, and it was only in the closing years of his life that the supremacy of his family and party in the county was threatened by the rivalry of the Griffiths of Cefn Amwlch (qq.v.), leaders of the conservative Llyn squires (see below, under Sir Richard Wynn, second baronet). He attempted to introduce the manufacture of Welsh friezes into the Vale of Conway, was interested in the Parys Mountain (Anglesey) copper mines, and in 1625 suggested to Sir Hugh Myddelton (q.v.) a project for reclaiming Traeth Mawr, separating Caernarvonshire from Merioneth. He founded (?) a school and almshouses at Llanrwst in 1610 [but see under Williams, John (fl. 1584-1627?)]. One of the petitioners for a royal commission to hold an eisteddfod in 1594, he encouraged the literary activities of his kinsmen, Thomas Wiliems of Trefriw (q.v.). His own History of the Gwydir Family was published in 1770 (ed. Daines Barrington), in 1827 (ed. Angharad Llwyd), 1878 (ed. Askew Roberts), and again in 1927 (ed. John Ballinger). He was also the author of a survey of Penmaenmawr (published in 1859 and reissued in 1906, ed. W. Bezant Lowe, q.v.).

By his wife Sydney, daughter of Sir William Gerrard, he had ten sons and two daughters. His eldest son, JOHN WYNN (c. 1584-1614) was educated at Bedford School and Lincoln's Inn. He was high sheriff of Merioneth, 1611-2, and was knighted in 1613. His marriage to Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Cave, appears to have been unhappy, and he travelled in France and Italy, 1613-4, and d. at Lucra, 1614, possibly in the Roman faith. His younger brother, RICHARD WYNN (1588-1649), succeeded as second baronet in 1627. Educated at Lincoln's Inn, he entered the Lord Chamberlain's service, 1608, was groom of the bedchamber to Charles, prince of Wales, 1617-25, and accompanied him on his voyage to Spain, 1623. Appointed treasurer to queen Henrietta Maria, 1625, he was groom of the bedchamber to the king and queen in 1629. He was Member of Parliament for Caernarvonshire, 1614, Ilchester, 1621-2 and 1624, Andover, 1640, and Liverpool, 1640-9. His unsuccessful contest for Caernarvonshire, 1620, when he was defeated by John Griffith of Cefn Amwlch (q.v.), marked the eclipse of the political influence of Gwydir in the county. He erected the Gwydir chapel in Llanrwst church, 1633. Despite his close connections with the royal family, he showed no eagerness to waste his estates in the king's service during the Civil Wars.

His marriage in 1618 to Anne, daughter and coheir of Sir Francis Darcy, was childless, and the baronetcy and estates fell to his brother, OWEN WYNN (1592-1660). Educated at Westminster, Eton, and S. John's, Cambridge, he was apprenticed to a merchant of the Staple in 1608, but eventually came under the patronage of lord-keeper (later archbishop) John Williams (q.v.), whose niece, Grace, he m. in 1642. Like his elder brother, he took no active part in the Civil Wars. Although threatened with sequestration in 1656, he appears to have escaped and as sheriff of Caernarvonshire in 1653, he proclaimed Cromwell as Protector. He was high sheriff of Denbighshire in 1656. He was interested in alchemy, chemistry, and metallurgy, and corresponded with Dr. John Davies of Mallwyd (c. 1567-1644) (q.v.).

His son, RICHARD WYNN (c. 1625-74), succeeded as 4th baronet in 1660. He was high sheriff of Caernarvonshire, 1657-8, Member of Parliament for Caernarvonshire, 1647-53 and 1661-75, and was associated with the municipal government of Denbigh. In 1659 he appears to have been implicated in the royalist insurrection arranged by Sir George Booth and Sir Thomas Myddelton (whose daughter, Sarah, he had m. in 1654) and was for a while imprisoned at Caernarvon. On his death in 1674 his estate passed to his daughter Mary (1661-89), who m., in 1678, Robert Bertie, baron Willoughby de Eresby, later marquis of Lindsey and duke of Ancaster, in whose family Gwydir remained until 1895. The baronetcy passed to John Wynn of Watstay (1628-1719), only son of Henry Wynn, tenth son of the first baronet, and was distinguished by his death.

WYNN (afterwards NANNEY, etc.) family of Maesyneuadd, Llandecwyn, Mer.

This family, like others in western Merioneth, traced its descent from Osbyrdd Wyddel (q.v.), in this instance through Dafydd ap Ieuan ab Einion, constable of Harlech castle (q.v.), and his wife, Margaret (Puleston). THOMAS, the son of Dafydd and Margaret, m. Gwerfyl, daughter of HOWEL AP RHYS, of Bron-y-foel—see Ellis family of Bron-y-foel and Ystumllyn—and had a son, DAFYDD, who m. Lowry, daughter of Maurice Gethin, Voelas, Denbighshire—see Wynne family of Voelas. The heir of Dafydd and Lowry was HUMPHREY AP DAFYDD, who was, it may be noted incidentally, the uncle of Humphrey Davies, vicar of Darowen (q.v.).

Humphrey ap Dafydd m. Annes, daughter of Eliza Morris (i.e. Ellis ap Maurice), Clenc nau—see Morris and Owen families of Clenennau—their heir being EDWARD AP HUMPHREY, whose death in 1620 was mourned in gwyddau written by Sion Phylip, Rhisiart

WYNN (FAMILY)

Phylip, and Gruffydd Phylip (see Phylipiad Ardudwy); the last-named also wrote a gwydd moliant to 'Mastr Edward Humffre.' It was by his first wife (of three) that he was the father of ROBERT AB EDWARD AP HUMPHREY, who by his wife, Elliw, daughter and heiress of Ifan ap Rhys Wynn, Hender'r Mur, Maentwrog, had two daughters—(1) Elizabeth, who m. Robert, son of archdeacon Edmund Prys (q.v.), and (2) MARGARET, the heiress of Maesyneuadd, who, by her husband, Griffith Lloyd, of Rhiw-goch, Merioneth, became the mother of another Maesyneuadd heiress, JANE LLOYD.

It is by the marriage of Jane Lloyd with MORRIS WYNN AP WILLIAM WYNN of Glyn (Cywarch)—see Wynn and Owen families of Glyn (Cywarch), etc.—that the surname Wynn comes into the Maesyneuadd family, to continue in use thereafter for several generations. Morris Wynn, who had been sheriff of Merioneth in 1670, d. on S. Bartholomew's Day, 1673; for extracts from an elegy upon him written by Phylip Sion Phylip, another member of the 'Phylipiad Ardudwy' family (q.v.). Morris Wynn, who was the second son of William Wynn, Glyn (Cywarch), is described as of Moel-y-glo, a house not far distant from Glyn (Cywarch) and Maesyneuadd. By his wife Jane Lloyd (above), the heiress of Maesyneuadd, he was the father of ROBERT WYNN (d. 1691), who became sheriff of Merioneth in 1679, and who m. Jane (Evans), of Tan-y-bwlch, Maentwrog—see Evans, Griffith, and Oakeley families, of Tan-y-bwlch. Robert and Jane Wynn were, in their turn, the parents of WILLIAM WYNN (d. 1720?), who was sheriff of Merioneth in 1714, and who married twice—(1) Margaret, daughter of Ellis Brynkir, the mother of his heir, ROBERT WYNN, who was sheriff of Merioneth in 1734, and who had [an aunt,] Lowry, who became the first wife of Ellis Wynne (q.v.), author of Gwledigaethu y Bardd Cwse, and (2) Margaret, daughter and coheir of Roger Lloyd, Rhagad, near Corwen—it was this second Margaret who was the mother of William Wynn (q.v.), rector of Llangynhafal, Denbs., and an eminent poet.

Robert Wynn, the son of William Wynn and Margaret (Brynkir), was sheriff of Merioneth in 1734. He had a brother, Ellis Wynn (who matriculated, as of Jesus College, Oxford, 9 March 1714/5, and who lived later at Congleton, Cheshire), and a sister, Jane, who became the wife of the Rev. William Wynn, son of Ellis Wynne, author of Gwledigaethu (as above—for this other William Wynn see the article on his father). Robert Wynn's heir, WILLIAM WYNN (d. 4 April 1795), sheriff of Merioneth in 1758, assumed the name of NANNEY—his mother was Lowry Nanney, [daughter of John Nanney (III) of Maes-y-pandy]; his heir (by Elizabeth, daughter of John Williams, Ty Fry, Pentraeth, Anglesey) was the Rev. JOHN NANNEY, who d. 21 March 1838, leaving a son, JOHN NANNEY (d. 1868), of Maesyneuadd and Maes-y-pandy, who was sheriff of Caernarvonshire in 1858. The Maes-yneuadd line was continued through ROBERT CHAMBRE VAUGHAN (1796-1876), son of this John Nanney's sister, LOWRY NANNEY (d. 1803), and her husband, Thomas Vaughan (d. 1804), Burlton Hall, Shropshire. Robert Chambre Vaughan was succeeded by his grandson, THOMAS GOLDISBOROUGH CHAMBRE VAUGHAN (b. 1856).

WYNN family, of Rûg, Merioneth, and Boduan (or Bodfean), Caerns.

Some particulars concerning certain members of this family are given in the articles on Bodvel family, Bodvel, Caerns., Glynn family, Glynllifon, Caerns., and Nannau (Nanney) family, Mer. In the Nannau family article it is shown how EDWARD WILLIAMES SALUSURY VAUGHAN (d. 1807), son of Sir Robert Howell Vaughan (1st baronet, of Nannau; d. 1796), succeeded to the Rûg property under a will of 1780; it remained in Vaughan hands until the death, in 1859, of Sir Robert Williames Vaughan, 3rd baronet, who bequeathed it to the third son of Spencer Bulkeley, 3rd baron Newborough, i.e. to the Hon. CHARLES HENRY WYNN (b. 22 April 1847; d. 14 Feb. 1911). C. H. Wynn was succeeded by his son, who ceased to live at Rûg c. 1951, but continued at the old family home, Boduan (or Bodfean), near Pwllheli, Caerns.

For the families who lived in Rûg up to the Vaughan and Wynn periods, particularly the Salusbury family (of Bachymbyd, Denbs.), see the article (by B. G. Owens) in N.L.W. Jnl., vi, 104-6, and the N.L.W. catalogues of that library which describe the Rûg and lord Bagot muniments. PIERS SALUSURY came to own the lordship of Rûg, by right of his wife, early in the 16th cent. His son, ROBERT SALUSURY, bought, in 1549, the lordship of Glyndyfrdwy, part of the patrimony of Owain Glyndwr; see in N.L.W. Jnl., iii, 48, a description of a document in the lord Bagot collection recording the transfer by Glyndwr, in 1392, of a tract of land.

As already noted, the old family home of this branch of the Wynn family is Boduan. Details concerning the branch are given in the usual books on the landed gentry, e.g. Burke, Nicholas, etc. For the pedigree see J. E. Griffith, Pedigree, 59, 171 (note), 173. JOHN WYNN, of Bodvel (which is near Boduan), who was high sheriff of Caernarvonshire in 1551 and 1560, was standard-bearer for Edward VI in the fighting near Norwich against Ket and his co-rebels in 1594; he received Bardsey Island as a gift in honour of his bravery (N.L.W. Jnl., vi, 106). John Wynn's wife was a member of the Puleston family. He was followed by his son THOMAS WYNN (d. 1673), Boduan. This Thomas Wynn's grandson became Sir THOMAS WYNN (d. 1749), 1st baronet, and it was he who married FRANCES GLYN, heiress of Glynllifon; their grandson was the Sir THOMAS WYNN

WYNN family, of Wynnstey, Ruabon.

The founder of the family was Hugh Williams, D.D. (1596-1670), rector of Llantrisant and Llanrhyddlad, Anglesey, and second son of William Williams of Chwaen Isaf, Llantrisant. Hugh's eldest son (Sir) William Williams (1634-1700) (q.v.), gained distinction as a lawyer; he was speaker of the House of Commons, 1680-1, appointed attorney-general in 1687, knighted the same year, and created a baronet in 1688. In 1675 he bought the Llanforda estate, Oswestry, from the last of the Lloyds; he d. 11 July 1700. His son, Sir WILLIAM WILLIAMS (1684-1740), the second baronet, m. Jane, daughter and heiress of Edward Thelwall of Plas-y-ward and great-granddaughter of the famous Sir John Wynn of Gwydir (q.v.); he was sheriff of Montgomeryshire, 1705, and of Merioneth, 1706, and was Member of Parliament for Denbighshire, 1708-10. The eldest son of this marriage was Sir WATKIN WILLIAMS (WYNN) (d. 1749) who, in 1740, inherited not only his father's title and estates but also, through his mother, the estate of Wynnstey, which had passed into the possession of Sir John Wynn (d. 1718/9), the last baronet of the direct Gwydir line, through his marriage with the heiress of Eyton Evans of Watstey (the old name of the mansion and the estate). After his succession to this estate Sir Watkin Williams adopted 'Wynn' as an additional surname. He was Member of Parliament for Denbighshire, 1716-41; in the 1741 election he lost the seat through a trick played by the high sheriff, although he had, in fact, fairly beaten his opponent, John Myddelton of Chirk castle; but this was put right in July 1742, and from that time until his dying day he continued to represent the county in Parliament, where he took an active part in the debates. There, too, Sir Watkin came to the fore as one of the chief supporters of the Stuart cause in 1745; while at home he was the leader of the 'Circle of the White Rose'—the Jacobite club started by him about 1723, which used to meet regularly at Wynnstey and other houses in the Wrexham district. But how much practical help he gave the Stuarts is still a secret. It is alleged that he wrote to prince Charles, promising to raise his part of the country on the prince's behalf and that he continued to correspond with him after the failure of the '45; however, nothing was proved against him and he government brought no accusation against him. On the other hand, there is no lack of evidence to show that Sir Watkin hated the Methodists; Peter Williams (q.v.) and others experienced fierce persecution at his hands and that was their rejoicing when he d. suddenly, 5 Sept. 1749, as a result of a fall from his horse while hunting. Sir Watkin had added extensively to the Wynnstey estate by his marriage with Ann, daughter and heiress of Edward Vaughan of Llwydiarth and Llangedwyn [q.v. on p. 998].

He was succeeded by Sir WATKIN WILLIAMS WYNN II (1749-89), the eldest son of his second marriage, to Frances, daughter of George Shackerley of Hulme, Ches. Like his father, the second Sir Watkin was Member of Parliament for Denbighshire, 1774-89, and in 1775 was made Custos Rotulorum and lord-lieutenant of Merioneth. But he is chiefly remembered as a patron of the fine arts; he could boast of his friendship with people like Sir Joshua Reynolds, the artist; Handel, the composer; and David Garrick, the actor. He contributed generously to the Welsh school in London and started two schools of his own in the parish of Ruabon; he was the second 'Chief President' of the Cymmrodorion Society (Cymm., 1951, 56-7). In the course of his childhood, his mother added to the extent of the Wynnstey property by purchasing on his behalf, in 1752, the Mathafarn estate, including the manor of Cyfeiliog, and the Rhiwsaesdon estate. Sir Watkin's first wife, Henrietta Somerset, d. shortly after the marriage, and he took as his second wife Charlotte, daughter of the right hon. George Grenville, by whom he had three sons and two daughters.

When his father d. in July 1789, the eldest son and heir, Sir WATKIN WILLIAMS WYNN III (1772-1840), was a boy of 17. He was Member of Parliament for Beaumaris, 1794-6, and for Denbighshire, 1796-1840; he was also lord-lieutenant of Merioneth and Denbighshire. But he was more interested in military matters than in politics. In 1794 he raised a cavalry regiment—'The Ancient British Fencibles'—and took part in the suppression of the Irish rebellion, 1798. He m. Henrietta Antonia Clive, eldest daughter of Edward, first earl Powis; and d. 6 Jan. 1840. He was president of the second Cymmrodorion Society from 1820 until his death.

With regard to the two brothers of the 3rd Sir Watkin: the elder, CHARLES WATKIN WILLIAMS WYNN (1775-1850), had a distinguished political career. He was Member of Parliament for Montgomeryshire, 1799-1850, under-secretary to the home office, 1806-7, and secretary of state for war in lord Grey's ministry, 1830-1. There is an article on his daughter, Charlotte, in the D.N.B. His other brother, Sir HENRY WATKIN WILLIAMS WYNN (1783-1856), elected to go to the foreign office and was, in turn, ambassador in Saxony, Switzerland, and Copenhagen.

WYNN, PRYSE, and CORBET families, Ynysmaengwyn, Mer., and GWYN and NANNEY families, Dolau Gwyn, Mer.

This is another Merioneth family claiming descent from Osborn Wyddel (q.v.). Osborn's son Kenric (Cynwrig) had a son LLYWELYN, who m. Nest, daughter and heiress of Gruffydd ab Adda of Dôl Goch and Ynysmaengwyn. The descendants of Llywelyn and Nest, in direct line (as far as Ynysmaengwyn was concerned), were GRUFFYDD, EINION (who m. Tanglwst, daughter of Rhydderch ab Ieuan Llwyd, Gogerddan, Cards.), IORWERTH (living in 1425), and JENKIN AP IORWERTH. Jenkin ap Iorwerth was 'farmer' (lessee under the Crown) of the mills of Kevynog and Caethleff (Caethley) and of the ferry of Aberdovey, in the thirty-sixth year of Henry VI. Jenkin ap Iorwerth's son, HOWEL, d. of the plague in 1494, but HUMPHREY (d. 1545), his son by his wife Mary, daughter of Sir ROGER KYNASTON, constable of Harlech castle, continued the line. Humphrey m. Annes, daughter of Sir Richard Herbert, Montgomery, and was, by her, the father of JOHN WYNN AP HUMPHREY, who m. Ann, daughter of Rhys Vaughan of Corsygedol, and was succeeded by his son, HUMPHREY WYNN (living in 1571). Humphrey Wynn, to whom Siôn Phylip addressed a cywydd asking him to give a harp to Siôn ap Richard, Pennal, m. Jane (Hughes, of Maes y Panddy) and left two daughters, coheirresses—(1) ELIZABETH (d. 17 May 1642); she m. Sir JAMES PRYSE of Gogerddan (d. 1642), who was high sheriff of Merioneth in 1606 and to whom Rhisiart Phylip, Siôn Phylip, and Siôn Cain wrote poems, and (2) CATHERINE, whose husband was John Owen ap John ap Lewis ab Owen, of Llwyn, Dolgelley.

The heir of Elizabeth and Sir James Pryse was their daughter BRIDGET, who m. (1) ROBERT CORBET, third son of Sir Vincent Corbet, Moreton Corbet, Salop, and (2) Sir Walter Lloyd (q.v.), Llanfair Clydogau, Cards. Robert and Bridget Corbet were succeeded by VINCENT CORBET (d. 1723), high sheriff of Merioneth, 1682, who m. Ann, daughter of William Vaughan (q.v.) of Corsygedol. They left four coheirresses—(1) Ann, who m. Athelstan Owen, Rhiwsaesdon, Mont. (q.v.), and through whom the Ynysmaengwyn line was continued, (2) Jane, (3) Elizabeth, and (4) Rachel. Corbet Owen and Richard Owen, the sons of Ann and Athelstan Owen, left no heirs, the line being continued by their sister ANN OWEN (d. 1767) and her husband, PRYSE MAURICE (1699-1799), Lloran Ucha, etc., who assumed the name of CORBET, as did others who succeeded him, the last being ATHELSTAN JOHN SODEN CORBET (b. 1850), who was high sheriff of Merioneth in 1875.

The Ynysmaengwyn estate was sold in 1874 to John Corbett, of Impney, Member of Parliament for Droitwich, who, however, was not connected by blood with the other Corbets. For a note on the house, see article by W. J. Hemp in Arch. Camb., xcvi, 230.

WYNN

There was a connection between Ynysmaengwyn and the adjoining house of Dolau Gwyn, which is just off the road leading from Towyn to Abergynolwyn. LEWIS GWYN (d. 1630) of Dolau Gwyn, who was high sheriff of Merioneth in 1617, was the second son of John Wynn ab Humphrey (above). By his first wife, Jane, daughter of Hugh Nanney, of Nannau, Lewis Gwyn had two daughters, Gwen (below) and Elizabeth, who m. Edward (?) Nanney, of Nannau. By his second wife, Annes, daughter of Hugh Gwyn ab Evan, Llwyn Griffri, Llanddwywe, Mer., he had four daughters, one of whom became coheirress with her sister, Elizabeth.

Lewis Gwyn figures quite prominently in the work of some bards who were contemporary with him, particularly Rhisiart Phylip—see the article Phylipiad Ardudwy and consult Cymm., xlii, 155-268—who wrote two cywyddau to a drinking vessel ('fiol frech') which was at Dolau Gwyn at that time, a cywydd to ask John Vaughan of Caer-gai to give a greyhound to Lewis Gwyn, an elegy on the death of Lewis Gwyn and on the death of his daughter (and coheirress), Gwen Gwyn, who was the first wife of Lewis Lloyd, Rhiwedog, near Bala. There was also an interesting 'bardic controversy' concerning Dolau Gwyn in which Rhisiart Phylip figured together with his brother Siôn Phylip, Gruffydd Hafren, and Ieuan Tew. Gruffydd Phylip, son of Siôn Phylip, wrote an elegy on GRIFITH NANNEY of Dolau Gwyn, son of Hugh Nanney (1588-1647) of Nannau. Griffith Nanney, who was sheriff of Merioneth in 1642, became the husband of ANN GWYN, coheirress of her father, Lewis Gwyn (above).

Dolau Gwyn was built by Lewis Gwyn, probably just before 1620. The house has the initials L.G.A.G. with the date 1620, these standing for Lewis Gwyn and Ann Gwyn. Elsewhere are the initials of G.N.A.N., and the date 1656—for Griffith Nanney, and Ann his wife.

[The story of the 'disinheriting' of Thomas Vincent (q.v. on p. 1009), 'son' of the Vincent Corbet (above) who d. in 1723, calls for investigation. The only 'Thomas Vincent' in Foster's Alumni who fits the dates is the Thomas Vincent, son of Thomas, 'of Merioneth (town)'—query 'Merioneth (Towyn)'—who matriculated from S. Mary Hall 16 April 1698 'aged 19', and was B.A. in 1701. And he is described as 'pauper puer'.

WYNN, EDWARD (1618-69), chancellor of Bangor cathedral, second son of Edward Wynn, Bodewryd—see Wynn of Bodewryd family—and his wife Margaret, daughter of Edward Puleston, rector of Llanynys; b. 1 Oct. 1618. His name occurs in the books of the cathedral.

GWYNEDD DYNASTIES

From the beginning of Welsh history Gwynedd was one of the primary provinces of Kingdom of Wales. Historic records list the dynasty of rulers of this and other provinces of Wales. Beginning with the year about 800 AD the genealogy of rulers is completely within the ancestral line of the Wynne (Gwynn) families. More complete studies would probably verify that the same family rulers of the various provinces back to a much earlier time- even to the beginning of the Christian era.

The exact ~~uncommon~~ chronological order of this family from about 800 AD until Wales became a part of Great Britain is as follows:

1. Prior to 844 A.D. ; Maelgwn Gwynedd of the Royal House of Gwynedd was ruler.
2. 844-855: Merfyn Frych, son-in-law of Maelgwn Gwynedd, was ruler
3. 855-878: Rhodri the Great (Mawr), son of Merfyn Frych. He was said to have been the most powerful of all rulers during this period in their history.
4. 878-916: Ararawd, son of Rhodri the Great.
5. 916-942: Idwal the Bald. son of Ararawd

A review of the history of Wales from the period of the Roman Conquest down until the time they were a definite part of England, and under the rule of the English monarchs show that within the provinces which made up all of Wales, there were many rulers for these various provinces, and at times one ruler would be over most of the entire territory. Most prominent among these rulers were the ancestors of the Wynnes. According to Lloyd's HISTORY OF WALES, the line of descent began about 400 A.D. when the ancestors of CUNEDDA were rulers. According to these historic records, beginning with CUNEDDA the line of descent is:

1. Cunedda- for a period of time soon after 400 A.D.
2. Cadwallon, son of Cunedda
3. Maelgwn, son of Cadwallon. d. 547

9. Merfyn Frych, son-in-law of Cynan, ruled until the year 855.
10. 855-873: Rhodri the Great (Iwer), son of Merfyn Frych, He was said to be the most powerful of all rulers during this period of their history.
11. 873-916: Anarawd, son of Rhodri the Great.
12. 916-942: Idwal, the Bald, son of Anarawd

THE GWIN FAMILY

The Gwin family is of exceedingly ancient origin, anti-dating the Christian era. Private and public records, history and pedigree charts of old Welch genealogists have all contributed data to perpetuate the history of the family, and the Gwins who came to America in 1611 are believed to be lineal descendants of the Welsh line ~~whom~~ of the same name that claims Caradac and Cymberline as ancestors.

Shakespeare never pictured a sweeter wife than the innocent and lovely Imogene, daughter of Cymberline, the Welsh king of early Britain. Those interested in a study of the Gwynn, Gwinn, or Winn family trace back with pleasure the direct and well-proved ascent of that family to Caradoc, leader of the Silures, whose father was King Cymberline. This king's treacherous step-mother, Cartismandua, Queen of the Brigantes, surrendered him to the Romans.

One of the most inspiring stories of the history of Great Britain was the resistance of the Silures, under the rule of Caradoc, to the Roman armies of the Emperor Claudius. According to history, Caradoc (or Daradoc) son of Cymberline, was one of the ancient Britains who, A.D. 47, refused to submit to Claudius after the southeastern portion of the Island of Britain had been moulded gradually into a Roman Province. He ruled the Silures, who inhabited South Wales, who stoutly and successfully resisted invasion and it was not until after many years of warfare that Caer Caradoc, the stronghold and home of the British leader (which occupied a hill in Shropshire near the confluence of the Coin and Terre) was captured by the Romans and without (?) his wife and ~~mother~~ family, Caradoc sought shelter at the court of his step-mother, Cartismandua, whom he had formerly befriended but who now betrayed him and surrendered him to the Romans (A.D. 91). He was conveyed to Rome where his magnanimous behavior secured him the admiration of captors and clemency at their hands. The wife of Caradoc is said to have been a daughter of Gwynn of Collyn, son of the Prince of North Wales.

The Gwynns are found among the earliest planters of the Virginia Colony (Gloucester Co). The name seems to have been spelled Gwin, Gwine, Gwain, Gwinn and Gwyn. The letter "G" may be omitted in each case. The adding of the letter "G" means past tense in Welsh, for instance Maby Gwynn was the daughter of Robert Wynn. The name Gwynn means "white". The dropping of the "G" occurred first in the 11th century when Owen Gwynned married first Glawdys, and they became progenitors of the present line of the Prince of Wales. He married secondly his cousin, Christian from whom issued the Wynn of Gwidir, as shown in pedigree and upon the tablet in Gwidir Chapel. Owen Gwynned, a lineal descendant of Gwyn of Collyn, Lord of Dyfed, Prince of North Wales, being the descendant of the two lines of his known as Gwynn and Wynn.

Gwydir Chapel, Danwret, Wales

The beautiful structure was erected in the year 1633 by Sir Richard Wynn of Gwidir and was for many years the burial place of the illustrious family of Gwidir. In the east wing of the chapel is a tablet of white marble containing the pedigree of the family comprising a period of 500 years. The inscription ~~reads~~ reads:

"This chapel was erected A.D. 1633 by Sir Richard of Gwidir, in the County of Carnarum knight and Baronet, Treasurer to the High and Mighty Princess Henriette Marie, Queen of England, daughter of Henry IV, King of France, and wife of our sovereign Lord King Charles, where lieth buried his father, Sir John Wynne of Gwidir, Knight and Baronet, son and heir to:

Marrice Wynne, who lieth here

Robert Wynne, who lieth here, and two daughters, Mary now living and married to Sir Roger Mastyn in the County of Flint, and Elizabeth now living and married to Sir John Rodenville, County of Carraron

From the time of Owen Gwynned to that of Sir Richard Wynne of Gwydir, a period of 500 years and 13 generations were passed of which we have no history except that on the tablet quoted above.

Capt. Owen Gwynn, Esq., son of John Wynn (1523-1626) of Gwydir and his wife, Sidney Gerroid, was born in 1580 and died 1660. Capt. Owen Wynn Gwynn married Grace Williams. He was knighted before he came over from England with the ~~first~~ <sup>second</sup> who emigrated to ~~Amerindia~~ the Virginia Colony under the third Charles in 1611, when the boundries were enlarged to include Divers Island lying within three leagues of the coast. He probably became proprietor of the Island known as Gwynn's Island, sometimes called Fisher's Island. Concerning Gwynn's Island there is a tradition given in Howe's "History of Virginia" that Pocahontas in attempting to cross the Pianktank River, was recovered from drowning by Col. Hugh Gwynn, to whom, to whom as a token of gratitude, she gave this island. Owen Gwynn's son Hugh was named for his maternal grandfather, Hugh Williams. Upon the death of his brother, Sir Richard Wynn, in 1649, Owen succeeded to the Baronety.

Col. Hugh Gwynn, son of Owen Gwynn and his wife Grace Williams, was born about 1613 and died 1699. His wife was Elizabeth Fielding. He represented Gloucester in the House of Burgesses 1652-1690 and was prominent as vestryman (1652-77). It is Probable that he had several children, but the Rev. John Gwynn, his son is the only one of whom we have any record.

THE LAST OF THE WYNN'S OF GWYDIR

THE last of the Wynn's of Gwydir, Sir John Wynn, the fifth baronet, was not literally "of Gwydir." He succeeded to the baronetcy in 1674 on the death of his cousin, Sir Richard the fourth baronet, but the Gwydir estate was inherited by Mary, Sir Richard's only daughter, and with her marriage to Lord Willoughby, later first Duke of Ancaster. Gwydir ceased to be the home of the Wynn's.

Sir John was born in 1628 and thus would have been old enough to have participated in the closing stages of the second Civil War. This supposition is strengthened by his association in 1654 with a group of ex-Royalist officers. John's father Henry had risen to be Solicitor-General to Queen Henrietta Maria and John resolved to follow in parent's steps and study Law. He was educated at Westminster School and the Middle Temple, and by the time he was 22 he had acquired various lands. In 1649 he made a will (afterwards revoked) in which he left to his father his estate which included all his lands and tenements in the parish of Trawsfynydd, and in the towns of Harlech, Ddolgellau, Bermo (Barmouth) and elsewhere.

John seems to have inherited his famous grandfather's flair for profitable investments. He led a gay life, according to Philip Yorke in The Royal Tribes of Wales, and he moved in high society. Maurice Wynn in a letter written in July 1659 mentions that "Sir John had purchased the Bishop of St. Asaph's lands in Maelor," which implies that Sir John had obtained his knighthood from the Lord Protector. He seems to have accepted the new regime for his name appears among those of the Commissioners of Array charged with raising men and horses a few weeks before the landing of Charles II.

MARRIAGE TO HEIRESS

He appears to have been on terms of close friendship with his cousin Sir Richard. Sir John sends two mares to Gwydir in 1662 and subsequently there are references to oysters sent to Sir John by Sir Richard who also made him a present of half a buck. This makes Sir John's later treatment of his cousin's fatherless daughter

On the death of his father Henry Wynn, he acquired his parent's home of Rhiwgoch in Merionethshire, and by his marriage to the heiress of Eyton Evans he found a delightful home. If Sir John indulged in any business transactions they would have been in the nature of real estate, but his marriage to Jane Evans must have been his most profitable investment. Her father, Eyton Evans, called his stately home "Watstay," because Wats Dyke ran nearby, and this name was retained until the end of the century. Liwyd refers to Watstay in 1699, and the Wynn Papers invariably use this name. Ultimately however Sir John changed it to Wynnstay by which it is now known.

MAN OF PLEASURE

"In 1678," writes Philip Yorke of Erthig, "Sir John inclosed a park for deer, with a stone wall, at Wynnstay, and at the same time the avenues of oak, elm and ash were planted there." Squire Yorke, dwelling close by, was in a position to write from first-hand knowledge. "Sir John was a man of pleasure in his youth; late in life he made a visit to Court in the

that he kept a coach—the symbol of those times. Marie Wynn died in 1677. John assisted in managing his uncle's affairs. He made proposals for the division of lands in Maenan, Betws Llangwm. The following year Sir Richard's wife, Sarah (Myddelton) died on June 1. A beautifully inscribed tablet in the Gwydir Chapel, Llanrwst Church, perpetuates his memory.

Sir Richard died in 1677, leaving his only daughter heiress, Mary, to the care of her grandmother, Lady Wynn. Sir John, despite his wealth, appears to have been satisfied with the settlement of the estate for in the following March Charles Myddelton writes from Chirk Castle, saying that the "threats and kind disturbances" which Sir John made against the heiress would have no effect. A similar letter was sent by Richard Trevor, who regretted the happy business between Wynn and her kinsman, a letter which made the "wonder much" as "Sir John was confident of his success." Later Sir John appeared as defendant in a law suit.

By NORMAN TUCKER

early days of Queen Anne, and meeting in the drawing-room after many years absence his old Westminster school-fellow, the Apostolic Beveridge of St. Asaph: "Ah, Sir John, Sir John," says the good Bishop to him, "When I knew you first the Devil was very great with you." "Yes, by Gad, my Lord," says Sir John, "and I wish he was half so great with me now." The writer adds that Sir John was "an early improver of Welsh gardening, and introduced a small swan egg pear, that is very popular and bears his name."

In the summer of 1684, when the Duke of Beaufort, as president of the Council of Wales and the Marches, made his progress through the Principality, he was entertained by Sir John at Watstay before proceeding to Gwydir, by way of Mostyn Hall and Conway.

STATUS SYMBOL

Though Sir John sat in Parliament (as was fashionable) he does not appear to have taken a serious interest in politics. References show Chancery Court. In 1678 a Complaint was filed in Chancery against Sir John concerning the endowment of almshouses and free schools in Llanrwst.

LAST YEARS

During his last years Sir John was afflicted with rheumatism. He was 91 when he died on January 19, 1718/9.

The last Wynn baronet was buried in Ruabon Church. What Philip Yorke describes as "a mass and monument of marble, ludicrous in its proportions."

Sir John Wynn had no children and Wynnstay and other estates of great value were left to his kinsman, Sir William Williams, afterwards Watkin Williams Wynne, included in the estate was Plas Llan, Eglwysbach, which bears Sir John's initials. The date 1684. Plas Llan remained a Wynnstay possession until the 1830s, when it was purchased by Mr. Williams and became part of

Beginning with Sir John Wynne of Gywdir Castle; he and his wife Sidney ap Sir William Gerraud, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, had the following issue: Sir John, Sir Richard, Sir Thomas, Owen, Maurice, and Robert.

Records show that Owen came to Jamestown, Virginia in 1611 and that Sir Thomas also came in 1620.

Robert Wynne, Gent., was Alderman of Canterbury 1599-1609. He died in 1609. Canterbury Cathedral records show that he came to Canterbury from Shrewsbury, Wales. In 1604 records show that he was 46 years of age. Records in his handwriting tell of his administering justice. There is not a clear record of whether he is the son of Sir John Wynne of Gywdir Castle, or his grandson. There is some indication that he could have been the son of Maurice Wynne.

Sir Peter Wynne, son of Robert Wynne was alderman in Canterbury in 1626. He lived in Mildred's Parish in Canterbury in 1626. He lived in Mildred's Parish in Canterbury where Robert Wynne of Virginia owned property. Peter was married in 1620 to Martha Coppin.

Sir Robert Wynne, from Kent, near Canterbury was born just prior to Dec. 28, 1622, at which time he was christened at St. Dunston's in Canterbury. He came to Virginia prior to 1656.

From the time of Owen Gwynned to that of Sir Richard Wynne of Gwydir, a period of 500 years and 13 generations were passed of which we have no history except that on the tablet quoted above.

Captain Owen Gwynn, Esq., son of John Wynn (1523-1626) of Gwidir and his wife, Sidney Gerroid, was born in 1586 and died before he came over from England with the noblemen who emigrated to the Virginia Colony under the third Charles in 1611, when the boundaries were enlarged to include Divers Island lying within three leagues of the coast. He probably became proprietor of the Island known as Gwinn's Island, sometimes called Fisher's Island. Concerning Gwynn's Island, there is a tradition given in Howe's "History of Virginia" that Pocahontas in attempting to cross the Pianktank River, was recovered from drowning by Col. Hugh Gwyn, to whom, as a token of gratitude, she gave this island. Owen Gwynn's son Hugh was named for his maternal grandfather, Hugh Williams. Upon the death of his brother, Sir Richard Wynn, in 1649 Owen succeeded to the Baronety.

Colonel Hugh Gwynn, son of Owen Gwynn and his wife Grace Williams, was born about 1618 and died 1699. His wife was Elizabeth Fielding. He represented Gloucester in the House of Burgesses 1652-1690 and was prominent as vestryman (1652-77). It is probable that he had several children, but the Reverend John Gwynn, his son, is the only one of whom we have any record.

THE GWYN FAMILY

The Gwin Family is of exceedingly ancient origin, anti-dating the Christian era. Private and public records, history and pedigree charts of old Welsh genealogists have all contributed data to perpetuate the history of the family, and the Gwins who came to America in 1611 are believed to be lineal descendants of the Welsh line of the same name that claims Caradoc and Cymberline as ancestors.

Shakespeare never pictured a sweeter wife than the innocent and lovely Imogene, daughter of Cymberline, the Welsh king of early Britain. Those interested in a study of the Gwynn, Gwin, or Wynn family trace back with pleasure the direct and well-proved ascent of that family to Caradoc, leader of the Silures, whose father was King Cymberline. This king's treacherous step-mother, Cartismandua, Queen of the Brigantes, surrendered him to the Romans.

One of the most inspiring stories of the history of Great Britain was the resistance of the Silures, under the rule of Caradoc, to the Roman armies of the Emperor Claudius. According to history, Caradoc (or Daradoc) son of Cymberline, was one of the ancient Britains who, A.D. 47, refused to submit to Claudius after the southeastern portion of the Island of Britain had been moulded gradually into a Roman Province. He ruled the Silures, who inhabited South Wales, woe stoutly and successfully resisted invasion and it was not until after many years of warfare that Caer Caradoc, the stronghold and home of the British leader (which occupied a hill in Shropshire near the confluence of the Coin and Terre) was captured by the Romans and without (?) his wife and family, Caradoc sought shelter at the court of his step-mother, Cartismanduc, whom he had formerly befriended but who now betrayed him and surrendered him to the Romans (A.D. 91). He was conveyed to Rome where his magnanimous behavior secured him the admiration of captors and clemency at their hands. The wife of Caradoc is said to have been a daughter of Gwynn of Collyn, son of the Prince of North Wales.

The Gwynns are found among the earliest planters of the Virginia Colony (Gloucester Co.) The name seems to have been spelled Gwin, Gwine, Gwain, Gwinn, and Gwyn. The letter "G" may be omitted in each case. The adding of the letter 'G' means past tense in Welsh, for instance Mary Gwynn was the daughter of Robert Wynn. The name Gwynn means "white". The dropping of the "G" occurred first in the 11th century when Owen Gwynedd married first Glawdys, and they became progenitors of the present line of the Prince of Wales. He married secondly his cousin, Christian from whom issued the Wynn of Gwidir, as shown in pedigree and upon the tablet in Gwidir Chapel. Owen Gwynedd, a lineal descendant of Gwyn of Collyn, Lord of Dyfed, Prince of North Wales, being the descendant of the two lines of his known as Gwynn and Wynn.

Dear Sue:

I visited the State Library today and reviewed Boddie's : Virginia Historical Genealogies. His treatment of the Southside Virginia line of the Wynn family is more complete than any I have seen. His identification of Capt. Robert Wynn with his line in England is especially helpful. I have found no other genealogist who records so much about descendants of William Wynn of Pittsylvania. Too bad he knew nothing of what became of our William of Tazewell.

There is one error in Boddie's record on the birth date of William, Sr. Boddie quotes a court deposition of William Wynn made in 1727 in which he stated that he was 22 years old. This would make his birth in 1705. Two or three years ago I sent you some notes on the Wynn's in which was a copy of the deposition to which Boddie refers. The deposition was made in 1721 and not in 1727; which makes his ~~age~~ birth in 1699 as is recored in the Jarvis records. The exact language of the deposition is contained in the History of Pittsylvania County.

Be sure and take note of the fact that Boddie correct an error contained in the Jarvis record in regard to the wife of Joshua Wynn. She was daughter of Peter Jones, grandfather of Peter Jones who founded Petersburg. You will recall that I had pointed out earlier the impossibility of the Jarvis account being correct.

Boddie uses the same sources of evidence to trace William Wynn from Prince George county to Pittsylvania that I had used, except that I listed several more land transactions in relation to the movement than he used. I also pointed out sameness in the name of his wife on an early transaction and much later in his will. It also helps to point out the appropriateness of the dates on which he sold land to the East while he was acquiring land to the West.

I talked with some of the library staff about use of copyright materials. It will be necessary to get the consent of the author, Mr. John Bennett Boddie, 2316 Summer Avenue, Mountain View, California. His consent will be needed if you plan to copy exact language from his book. However, if you want to use the sources of authority that you have which are about the same as his, and then say that his findings conform to those of yours, there is no need for having his consent. It is always good to list references where more can be found on the subject.

If you decide that you want photostatic copies made of any his material after you get his consent the enclosed form is for your use. I'll be glad to do that for you when you decide what you want.

There is need for as much evidence as possible to tie William Wynn of Tazewell to Pittsylvania Co. You note that Boddie has William, Jr. and three children accounted for under the census in Pittsylvania Co. in 1802 which was nine years after he showed up in Tazewell. Perhaps he had not completely left Pittsylvania Co. by that time. However, it would be good to include a photostatic copy the letter to which Walter Smith refers; certainly to refer to the fact that such a letter was written.

You didn't tell us a thing about the flood that you have had. Did Powell River get up in the bottom field. We imagined that it may have been higher than it had ever been.

Best of regards to all,

Dear Sue:

I have used some spare time looking through some State Library records and I am listing below some odds and ends of data on different branches of our ancestors as I have come across information:

Data on Whitley's

Paul Whitley was one of 100 families brought from Ireland by <sup>B</sup>enjamin Borden to settle upon the 500,000 acres of land granted him ~~by~~ in 1732 by Gov. Gooch, provided that he had 100 families settled upon it within a ten year period. Borden took his settlers to the Valley by about 1735.

Paul and Sarah Whitley sold 200 a. of land to Jonathan Whitley on Buffalo Creek in 1750, also in 1755 73 a. north of James River and in 1757 another 50 a. sold to Jonathon.

Jonathon Whitley closed a mortgage on Robert Shannon in 1767. He divorced his wife Catherine in 1767 on grounds of cruelty. In 1768 he was made guardian of Lilley Whitley. He was in several law litigations.

Solomon Whitley was listed among keepers of the road in 1753. He sold three tracts of land, 35 a., 110a., and 100 a. to Thomas Logan in 1777. His wife was Elizabeth. He witnessed the closure of mortgage by Jonathon Whitley on Robert Shannon, 1767. In 1764 he bought for 13 lbs. the furniture and impliments of Edward Gills.

Robert Whitley in 1768 acquired 335 a. of land on Cedar Creek in <sup>B</sup>otetourt Co.

David Whitley acquired 34 a. north of James River. (no date)

Col. William Whitley b. Aug. 14, 1749, Augusta County. Wife, Esther Fuller.

Data on Wynn's

William Wynne bought land of Valentine Harmon in 1773, had lawsuit with William English over title.

Thomas Pierie's son married William Wynne's daughter.

Christopher Marrs was a brother-in-law to William Wynne

Josiah Wynne, son of William Wynne listed following children in his will:

William, Peter, Oliver, David, Harmon, Jessiah, Robert, Jenny, and his wife Mary; also brother-in-law David Whitley. Dated November 16, 1812, recorded at Taxewall, Feb. 1813.

Other Wynn data

Peter Wynne (Wyn) came to Virginia with Capt. Newport in 1608. He had been appointed to the Council by Governor Gates who at that time was in England. Gates appointed Wynne to act as Governor until he could get from Bermuda, where he was shipwrecked, to Virginia. The letter carrying the appointment did not arrive. In the spring of 1609 he and others made explorations far inland. A letter by him give our earliest impressions of the inland country. In his letter Wynne states that he is from Wales. He died in the spring of 1609.

Hugh Wynne was listed as living at Jamestown within the corporate limits in the census of 1623. Hugh Wynne came over in the ship "George" in 1621. He acquired 200 a. of land at Bay of New Towne Haven in Isle of Wight Co. (Elizabeth River) in 1637.

Anne Wynne acquired land in Elizabeth River area in 1652

Christopher Wynne at Lynnhaven in 1638

Garrett Wynne at Isle of Wight in 1647

Matthew Wynn sold land in Elizabeth City Co. in 1636

Wynne Family

1. Captaine Thomas Wynne, Knight, (b. ca. 1590) reputed to be the son of Sir John Wynnes, of Gwydir, Wales, came ~~from America~~ from Wales or England to Virginia., before 1620. In York County, Va. 1620, married Dorothy Hines and had four sons, Thomas, John, Obed, and Richard.
2. -----Wynne, unknown which son, or whether a son of Thomas Wynne or Owen Wynne of Gloucester County, Va. (Owen Wynne is reported, however, to have returned to England after a short stay in Virginia).
3. Richard Wynne of Hanover and Middlesex County married Elizabeth Minor (daughter of John Minor) and had Minor, and Richard born 1670.
4. Minor Wynne I (or Winn) b. about 1660 died 1730, settled at "Eden" in what was then Westmoreland County but became Prince William County in 1710 and had William, Jesse, Thomas, Minor, Susan and Elizabeth. James, John
5. Minor Winn III born probably in Westmoreland Co. in 1704 died in Fauquier Co March 1778) was in territory now Fauquier before 1750, then still County of Prince William, purchased lands from Nicholas Minor in 1763, sold it and moved to Leeds parish in Fauquier Co in 1771, where he resided until his death. He acquired large tracts of land from the Colony of Virginia located in what is now Fayette and Bourbon Cos. Ky. His will is dated Feb. 5, 1778 and approved Mar. 23, 1778. He married Margaret O'Connor from Ireland from Ireland and had John, Minor, William, James, Richard, Margaret, Susannah, Mary and Elizabeth.

Dear Sue:

I've been so busy this week that I have not had time until today look for further information on the Wynn genealogy. Today I have done some further research and have gone over the material that I have already assembled. The facts that I have been able to bring together fully convinces me that our branch of the Wynn family comes through the Southside Virginia Wynnes. On the other hand, I can find nothing to support the theory that William Wynn of Pittsylvania Co. and Fazeell County descended from the Minor Wynnes of Northern Virginia except the occurrence of the name Minor in the family of the Fazeell Co. William Wynn. The following are some of the evidences that point toward the Southside Virginia line:

1. Jarvis: Minor and Jarvis; Page 87 gives the following data on the first two generations:

Robert Wynn b. 1430, New Kent, England. d. Mary Poythress. Issue:
Robert
Thomas
Joshua m. Mary Jones, dr. of Peter Jones, founder of Petersburg. *

2. Joshua Wynn and Mary Jones

Peter b. 1685 d. 1738
Joshua b. 1690
Mary
William b. 1699 d. 1777 of Lunenburg and Brunswick Counties
Robert b. 1705
Francis

Joshua Wynn was killed by Indians in 1714 and his estate was settled and recorded in Prince George County court records in 1719. Peter Wynn, obviously his son, was administrator of the estate. Since there was no will, Jarvis has been able to secure dates on birth s and names that I have not located. They probably come from Parish record, ~~which have not been located~~. The fact that there are numerous entries of this period in Prince George and Brunswick Counties in the names of Peter, Joshua, William, & Robert and the fact that they are known not to be the children of Joshua's brother Thomas supports the creditability of the Jarvis report.

There are a number of facts which support the idea that William Wynn, son of Joshua and a resident of Prince George County is the William Wynn of Pittsylvania Co.

1. Prince George County Deed Bk p. 484 shows a deposition on August 1721 by William Wynn, age 22, in a trial growing out of a fight occurring in the home of Mr. Harrison. The age conforms to the age of William Wynn, son of Joshua.
2. Page 816 of the same Deed Book shows William Wynn, acquiring 192 a. of land on Stony Creek in Prince George County. Other Wynn's of the same family also acquired land on Stony Creek and Rottoway River during the same period. 1727
3. ~~Joshua~~ In 1739, according to Brunswick Co Deed Book William Wynn sold land to Frederick Jones also he sold some personal property to John Peterson of Prince George County.
4. Lunenburg Co. Deed Bk no. 1 p. 42 shows that in 1746 William Wynn sold land on Barnister River in Lunenburg Co to Joshua Epps. Deed Bk #3 for same County in the year 1752 shows a sale of property to Charles Barret and John Lewis. This was in Cumberland Parish. His wife Frances was party to the deed.

WYNNE

The name Gwynn means white. That it should appear in various spelling forms is not strange since it is well known that in the 17th century there was no uniformity as regards spelling. The name is found as Gwynn, Gwynne, Gwynedd, Gwin, Gwinn, Wynn and Wynne, used as this ancient Welsh family listed among those of Royal descent. It has been said that the two most important families in Wales were the Wynns of North Wales and the Gwynns of South Wales.

The northern branch Wynns are listed as one of the leading houses Carnarvonshire in North Wales in the 16th and 17th centuries.. The Wynns have their roots there at Gwydir and were the most widely ramified and influential. It is thought the southern Gwynns in Carmarthenshire were probably a junior branch.

The "G" was dropped when Owen Gwynedd lineal descendent of Gwynn Collwynn, Lord of Dyfed, Prince of N. Wales married Christian from whom issued the Wynns of Gwydir.

On a tablet in Gwydir Chapel at Llanrst, Wales one may read the pedigree of the family from Caradoc. "Son of Cynobelin who was an ancient Breton in 47 A.D. refused to submit to Claudius.

AMERICA

It was Owen Gwin, Esq. a descendent of Owain Gwynedd, who came to the colony at Virginia in 1611-12 under the 3rd charter. He was the son of Sir John Wynn (author of the History of the Gwydir Family) by his wife, Sidney, (daughter of Sir William Gerard, Chancellor of Ireland ) by whom he had eleven sons and two daughters. He died in 1629, age 73, and was buried in Llanrwst. Sir John Wynn was a man of mark and his family before him were of great influence in Wales. Sir John was a true and unsophisticated Welshman - blunt, irascible, honest and simple.

Owen Gwin or Owen Gwynn became proprietor of the island known as Gwynn's Island. Owen was the son of Sir John Wynne of the Wynnes of Gwydir by his wife Lady Sarah (or Sidney) Gerrard, daughter of Sir William Gerrard, Knight, Lord Chancellor of Ireland. Sir Owen Gwynne married Grace Williams, daughter of Hugh Williams. It was on Gwynn's Island that the Battle of Point Pleasant, the first battle of the Revolutionary War was fought.

Children of Owen Gwynn

1. Hugh Gwynn-- no issue
2. David Gwynn
3. Elizabeth

Another prominent member of this family was John Gwinn who married Mary Whitehead. Miner Gwinn, John's son, was very prominent, and also, another son Richard.

Description of Gwydir Chapel

This beautiful structure was erected in 1633 by Sir Richard Wynne of Gwydir and was for many years the burial place of the illustrious family of Gwydir. At the side of the chapel, set in panels of wood, are seven engravings on glass, illustrative of the personages interred below. In the east corner is a tablet of white marble containing the pedigree of the family comprising a period of 500 years; another tablet and one of special interest to the Gwynns and Wynnes of America is thus: The chapel was erected in the County of Carnarvon, Knight and Baronet, Treasurer to high and mighty Henrieta Maria, Queen of England, daughter of Henry IV, King of France and wife to our sovereign, King Charles where lyeth buried his father, Sir John Wynne of Gwydir, Knight and Baronet, son and heir to Morris Wynne, son and heir to John Wynne, son and heir to Meredith Wynne, which three lie buried in the Church of Dolwyddelan, with tombs over them. This Meredith was son and heir to Evan, son and heir to Robert, son and heir to Meredith, son and heir to Howell, son and heir to David, son and heir to Griffith, son and heir to Carodoc, son and heir to Roderick, Lord of Aglesce, son of Owin Gwynedd, Prince of Wales, the younger brother of David, Prince of Wales who married Emma Plantagenet, sister of King Henry II.

" Captain David Gwynne wrote the final ne was added to the name after a family feud in the 17th century said to have taken place at the Court of Queen Elizabeth, with what truce, I do not know". page 335 from "Across the Years in Prince George's County" by Effie Gwynn Bowie.

Captain John Gwynne was a retainer in the House of Charles I. He was employed in training the family of that unfortunate prince to military exercises. After the execution of Charles I, he followed the banner of Prince Charles; and his "Memoirs" are among the most valuable records of that period.

William Wynne was the 6th son of Sir John Wynne. He married Jane Lloyd. His son was Richard Wynne; his son was Peter Wynne, who was the king's council in 1608. He arrived on the "Mary and Margaret" to the Coloinnes.

It is thought that Peter Wynne of England is the grandfather of Robert Wynne. Peter Wynne was a member of the Council in Virginia. He died in 1609 in Virginia.

Appling, Georgia.
Sept. 9, 1925

My dear Mrs. Barrett:

I will give you what I have been told by some old residents whom I knew in years past about the Applings.

John and William Appling settled here prior to the Revolutionary War. They were brothers, and two of their sisters also lived at or near the village of Appling. Elizabeth was the wife of Joshua Wynne, and Lucy the wife of Col. John Lamar.

The father of John and William lived in Amelia County, Va., and his will is recorded there. He had other children who never came to Georgia to live.

The Col. John Appling who lived and died here, was a colonel in the Revolutionary war. His wife was named Eleanor D. They had two children, Daniel who was a soldier in the War of 1812 and for whom Appling County, Georgia, was named. He was a colonel and died in Alabama while serving in the U.S. army about 1818. He was a most brilliant man in every respect. His sister, Rebecca C.C. Appling, married Col. Stewart, of Columbus, Ga.

Appling, Georgia, was named for Col. John Appling, though his brother William gave the land for the public buildings.

Joshua Wynne and his wife had children one, Patsy Wynne married a Mr. Moore. Their daughter Patsy married Simmons Crawford, who was an honored citizen of this County. His wife died young, leaving one son Anderson Moore Crawford, whom I knew well. He was married three times and left many children and grandchildren. His third wife is still living, over ninety years old.

Patsy Wynne Moore and her husband, Judge Simmons Crawford (who married daughter Patsy) and his wife are all buried on the public square here near the Court House. No tomb stones, but their graves are enclosed by a very substantial rock wall.

I remember Judge Simmons Crawford. He died about 1870, the others long before. Mrs. Moore was very wealthy. Her home is still standing, as are the homes of John Appling and Mrs. Lucy Appling Lamar. They were all people of the highest class, and ancestors that would be an honor to anyone.

If I can be of further service to you, let me know.

Yours very respectfully,

Signed, Frank D. Gray

GWYDIR, a township, in the parish and union of Llanrwst, hundred of Nantconway, county of Carnarvon, North Wales, on the western bank of the river Conway, 1/2 a mile west from Llanrwst; containing 376 inhabitants. The name is a contraction of Gwaed-dir, "the bloody land," either from this having been the scene of some battles fought by Llywarch Hen, about the year 610, or from a sanguinary conflict which occurred, in 952, between the sons of Hywel Dda and the princes Ievav and Iago. The surface of this township is exceedingly hilly, and within its limits is comprised the greater part of the vast lofty mountain called Moel Siabod, one of the most prominent of the Snowdonian chain. The estate of Gwydir comprises thirty-one thousand acres, of which upwards of two thousand consist of plantations, formed since 1790, and five hundred are in lakes, twelve in number; it includes the whole of this township, and extends into the parishes of Trevriw, Llanrhychwyn, Bettws y Coed, and Dolwyddelan, and contains an abundance of lead-ore, zinc, and pyrites, all worked, besides four extensive slate-quarries, in active operation. It came into the possession of the family of Wynne by purchase from a descendant of Howel Coytmoir, grandson of Davydd, brother of Llewelyn, the last prince of Wales, whose monument is in the Gwydir chapel adjoining Llanrwst church, and continued for several generations to belong to that family, until it passed, in the year 1678, into that of the Duke of Ancaster, by the marriage of Mary, daughter and heiress of Sir Richard Wynne, with Robert Marquis of Lindsay. Priscilla, Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, elder sister of Robert Duke of Ancaster being espoused Sir Peter Burrell, Bart., the mansion and estate of Gwydir became the property of that gentleman, who in 1796, was created

Baron Gwydir; and, at his death in 1820, it descended to his eldest son, Peter Robert Drummond Burrell, second Lord Gwydir, and present Lord Willoughby de Eresby. The ancient mansion was situated beneath the wood-clad rock called Carreg y Gwalch, or "The Rock of the Falcon;" it was built by John Wynne ab Meredydd, in 1555, and consisted of a greater and a lesser court, but was taken down in 1816, since which time the present structure, on a much smaller scale, has been erected: a small portion of the former mansion still remains, and has been lately fitted up in an antique and elegant style: the grounds are laid out with corresponding judgment and taste. In the plantations above the Lower Gwydir stood another edifice called the Upper Gwydir which was pulled down several years ago, and the walls of which were almost covered with inscriptions; it was erected in 1604, by Sir John Wynne (who distinguished himself by his partiality to antiquarian researches, and by compiling the memoirs of his family), as a kind of summer-house embracing a fine prospect of the rich and beautiful Vale of Conway, and of the picturesque scenery with which this mountainous district abounds. Near its site stands a small handsome chapel, built by Sir Richard Wynne, in 1673, and lately improved by the present noble possessor of the estate, whose domestic chaplain performs divine service in it, every Sunday, in the English language, which affords great accommodation to the numerous English families resident in the neighborhood. Carreg y Gwalch was the retreat of Davydd ab Shenkin, ~~Mr. Pennant says that~~ a noted partisan of the house of Lancaster, who for some time concealed himself in a cave, called from that circumstance Ogo Davydd ab Shenkin. Mr. Pennant says that "the noblest oaks in all Wales grew on this rock within memory of man."

although they are "totally destitute of earth for a considerable way, so that the nutriment which the oaks received must have been derived from the deep penetration of the roots, through the fissures of the stones, into some nutritive matter." The total expenditure of the rates, for the year ending March 25th, 1837, amounted to L141, of which L105 was for the relief of the poor, L21 towards county rates, and L15 for defraying incidental charges.

WYNNE.

Mr. LLOYD'S MSS. include a large number of notes connected with his researches in re. the parentage and ancestry of Dr. Thomas Wynne; but at the time of his death no conclusion had been reached. A tentative pedigree, typewritten, found among his papers, is marked as incorrect, and there is a note to the effect that further search had been abandoned, because of the difficulty in identifying the many persons named Thomas Wynne, who were contemporary with the Pennsylvania settler. The search was subsequently undertaken for Richard Y. Cook, Esq., of Philadelphia, and the results, which were published under the title of "Ancestry of Dr. Thomas Wynne," Dr. Thomas Wynne was born at Bron Vadog, near Caerwys, and baptized at Bodfari, 20 July, 1627, being the second son of Thomas ap John Wynne, of Bron Vadog.

A tradition long existed among Dr. Wynne's descendants that he was nearly related to the famous family of Wynn of Gwydir. The relationship, which was through intermarriage, is shown on a chart under WILLIAMS, a portion of which was compiled from material found among the Lloyd MSS. indicate that further research by Mr. Lloyd would have produced the same results.—

The genealogical MSS. left by Mr. Howard Williams Lloyd consist of a number of volumes of notes and correspondence relating to those early settlers in Pennsylvania from whom he was descended, and, incidentally, to some of their relations, neighbours, and posterity. The reports which, from time to time, he received from his several correspondents in England and Wales, are included, for the most part, in four folio volumes, and are inserted without classification, and not always in the order in which they were received.

In common with others engaged in such research, he himself collected, and also received from abroad, much data which, eventually, proved to have no bearing whatever on the lines in which he was interested. For instance, there are among his MSS. a large number of wills of persons named Pennell, Panall, etc., who died during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, in places very distant from Balderton, Notts, where Robert Pennell was born in 1640, and whose connection, if any, with the Notts family must have been exceedingly remote. The same thing may be said as to searches in re the Sloper, Newman, Knight, Jackson and other families. There are, likewise, a considerable number of abstracts of Welsh wills, administrations, and extracts from parish registers, concerning miscellaneous Lloyds, Wynnes, Griffiths, and others, none of which relate to persons even remotely connected with the individuals Mr. Lloyd was attempting to trace, or with each other.

Scattered through the MSS., also, are numerous copies of pedigrees, from the Heralds Visitations, of families bearing the same names as those from which Mr. Lloyd descended; but the connection, if any, between the two is usually more than problematical. This is exceptionally true as to the Welsh pedigrees, of which there are many, all copied from Dwnn's Visitations of Wales, Lloyd's "History of Powys Fadog," the "Montgomeryshire Collections" and similar publications. All such data can well remain in MS. for the enlightenment or mystification of the curious.

In two of the volumes devoted to the results of searches regarding the ancestry of Robert Lloyd, and in other volumes containing material concerning other Welsh ancestors of Mr. Lloyd, will be found much information about other early settlers in Merion, Radnor, Haverford, and Gwynedd, but little of importance is to be found among these notes which has not already appeared in print.

Several volumes contain genealogies of the descendants of the Lloyd, Jones (from John ap Thomas of Merion), and other families. These are of real interest, but, in many cases, owing to confusion in arrangement, are difficult to understand, and, if published, would certainly include many unavoidable errors. As they stand they are certain to be most useful to genealogists.

The most valuable part of Mr. Lloyd's collection consists of data collected from Pennsylvania, English, and Welsh records, relating to those families from which he derived descent, and concerning which, in most cases, little or nothing has heretofore been written. In the few instances where partial records of these families have been printed, Mr. Lloyd has either corrected errors, as in the Awbrey pedigree, or added much interesting information, as in the biographical sketch of John Blunston. In most cases he has traced the families back for several generations prior to their removal to Pennsylvania.

Mr. Lloyd, some years before his death, began the compilation of biographical-genealogical sketches of a number of these early colonists. His decease left these in the rough and incomplete, his correspondence indicating that he expected to add considerably to them when the searches which he had planned were completed.

The following genealogies embrace the most important part of Mr. Lloyd's labours. His rough notes have been carefully compared with original transcripts and foreign reports, and the imperfect sketches completed and edited.

Opportunity has permitted a personal examination of many of the records in England and Wales which Mr. Lloyd cites, and others, not searched by him, bearing on the subject. This has resulted in the verification of some doubtful lines, and additions to others.

It should be mentioned here that Mr. Lloyd had a fixed conviction that the correct way to compile a genealogy was to begin with later generations and add the earlier ones afterwards, and his rough notes were so arranged. This plan, in deference to Mr. Lloyd's opinion, has, as far as practicable, been carried out, although contrary to accepted methods. In conformity with this theory, Mr. Lloyd always used the word "ascent" instead of "descent," when speaking of anyone's lineage.

Some copies of records of especial interest, relating to Merionethshire, Flintshire, and Montgomeryshire, and a few notes regarding the early Welsh colonists, have been added.

W Y N N E.

MR. LLOYD'S MSS. include a large number of notes connected with his researches in re the parentage and ancestry of Dr. Thomas Wynne; but at the time of his death no conclusion had been reached. A tentative pedigree, typewritten, found among his papers, is marked as incorrect, and there is a note to the effect that further search had been abandoned, because of the difficulty in identifying the many persons named Thomas Wynne, who were contemporary with the Pennsylvania settler. The search was subsequently undertaken for Richard Y. Cook, Esq., of Philadelphia, and the results, which were published under the title of "Ancestry of Dr. Thomas Wynne,"<sup>1</sup> Dr. Thomas Wynne was born at Bron Vadog, near Caerwys, and baptized at Bodfari, 20 July, 1627, being the second son of Thomas ap John Wynne, of Bron Vadog.

A tradition long existed among Dr. Wynne's descendants that he was nearly related to the famous family of Wynn of Gwydir. The relationship, which was through intermarriage, is shown on a chart under WILLIAMS, a portion of which was compiled from material found among the Lloyd MSS. indicate that further research by Mr. Lloyd would have produced the same results.—

Richard Clegg of Gwydir

This beautiful and historic mansion, whose importance merits the title of Castle, is situated on the banks of the River Conway, four miles from Betws-y-Coed, and half-a-mile from Llanrwst. Ruined by a series of fires, it was purchased in 1944 by Arthur Clegg, and restored, beautified and furnished by him and his wife, and this work continues by his son Richard Clegg, the present owner.

Arthur Clegg had long desired to restore the castle, and at the age of 63 he faced with enthusiasm a task that would have daunted most men—the repair of desolation, ruin, heaps of rubble, charred beams, a wilderness once gardens, trees growing from chimneys and windows grown over with creeper. His own architect, artisan and labourer, he proceeded with the restoration stone by stone, and when he died in 1962 he left his wife and his son Richard to continue the restoration.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clegg are still in residence at Gwydir, and continue with the work of restoration. He has added a large coach and car park, and flood lighting. A souvenir shop displays many examples of Welsh tapestry and traditional crafts which can be seen and purchased by the many visitors to the castle.

The peacocks which have become such a feature of Gwydir, and the rearing of which has been the hobby of Richard, are now a great attraction to visitors. They include the rare white peacocks which add contrast to the usual coloured varieties.

Gwydir Castle

Gwydir Castle was built on land once part of the domain of Prince Llewellyn the Great, Prince of Wales, born at Dolwyddelen Castle. This prince and his second wife, Princess Joan, natural daughter of King John of England, resided in their palace at nearby Trefriw.

The first known building on the site, before Gwydir Castle, was a fortification dating from 600 A.D. A fortified watch-tower was built by Howell Coetmor early in the 14th century and his effigy may still be seen in the Chapel at Llanrwst Church. This watch-tower, now attached to the restored South Wing, may well be the stair-tower which had a flat stone roof.

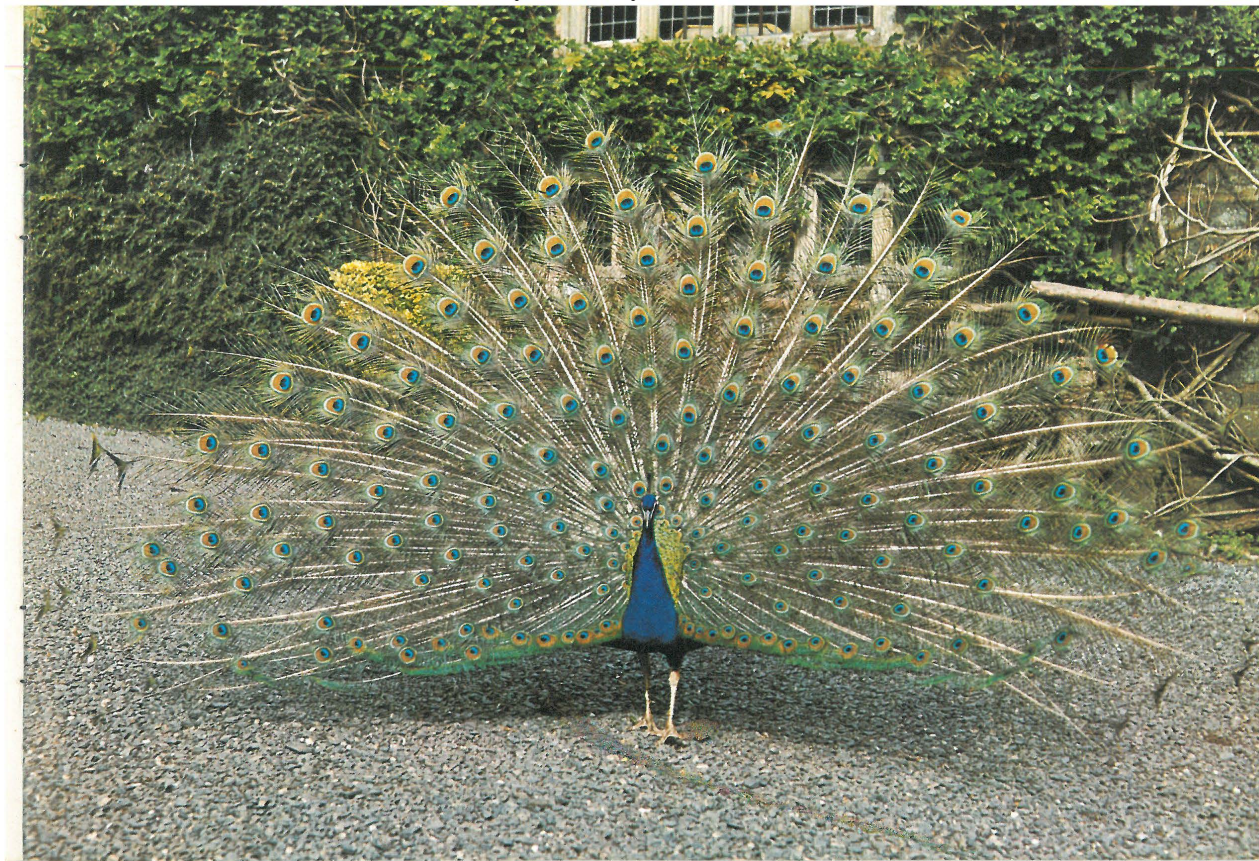

A descendant of Howell Coetmor sold the property to Meredith ap Jevan, a former resident at Dolwyddelen Castle. He settled at Gwydir, and built the 'Hall of Meredith,' now the Banqueting Hall, containing the short tower with a spiral staircase, and he is considered to be the founder of Gwydir. He had 26 children, and he died in 1525 at the age of 65. He was buried at Dolwyddelen Church, where a brass depicting him may be seen.

John Wynn, his son, enlarged Gwydir. His initials and the date 1555 were placed over the gateway, and much of the building of Gwydir was continued in his lifetime. There are many examples of marked pieces of wood and stone in his work which can be traced to have come from the Abbey of Aberconway at Maenan, particularly the small windows of dressed red Sandstone inserted in the stairway tower.

The name Gwydir comes possibly from Gwaed-dir (meaning "Bloody Land"—from battles fought in the district in 610, 952 and 1079) or more probably from Gwy-tir, meaning "Water Land" from the water meadows by the Conway.

John Wynn ap Meredith died in 1559, and his son Moris Wynn married Jane Bulkeley, daughter of Sir Richard Bulkeley of Beaumaris and died in 1580. His son, John Wynn, born 1553, married the daughter of the Lord Chancellor of Ireland and became M.P. for Caernarvonshire in 1596, after being High Sherrif. As a J.P. he held court in the Hall of Justice at Gwydir, keeping his prisoners awaiting trial in a crypt below.

One of John Wynn's daughters (he had 11 sons and 2 daughters) emigrated to America in 1610, and her son became a member of Virginia House of Burgers in Jamestown. Sir John was succeeded by Sir Richard Wynn who died childless in 1649, and Gwydir was inherited by his brother Sir Owen Wynn, on whose death in 1660 his son, Richard became 4th Baronet. He died in 1674 leaving a daughter, Mary, who in 1678 married Robert Bertie, 1st Duke of Ancaster, in whose family Gwydir remained till in 1895 it passed to the Earl of Carrington.

Eventually the Castle was ruined by a series of fires, the last of them in 1924, and it passed to a Dr. Kendrick of Caerhun Hall, Rowen, from whom Mr. Arthur Clegg bought the property in 1944, and began his work of restoration, redeeming a notable part of the history of Wales which would otherwise have been lost for ever, and restoring the past beauty of the ancient mansion and its grounds.

The Jacobean Dining Room

Much of the original story of Gwydir has come to light in the restoration. Fireplaces were found to conceal even older fireplaces, and a low doorway was discovered, giving access to a secret priest hole. A ceiling completely concealed the hammer beams of the original hall, and many relics of the past were brought to light. A crude carved stone was unearthed, representing a heraldic beast bearing a shield with the date 1171 and surmounted by a crown. In another corner was found a broken axehead welded with rivets.

The courtyard is entered from the Bettws-y-Coed road by the main gateway constructed in 1555 and bearing the date and the initials of John Wynn. To the right is the Guard Room, now used as an estate office. Ahead stands the Chapel with its oriel window of leaded lights and stone mullions. Gwydir was the first Welsh building to instal glass windows. The stone eagle carved above the windows is part of the Wynn crest.

The entrance hall to the left of the gateway displays a collection of flintlock muskets. The Hall leads to the fine Jacobean Dining Room, whose sturdy proportions and rugged strength lend it dignity and grace. It contains a chair that once belonged to Oliver Cromwell, and is marked by a bullet hole.

Royal Bedroom

As the restoration of Gwydir has proceeded, rooms have been fitted with period furniture. Some of the pieces were originally at Gwydir, but sold before the fires, and have been recovered and reinstated.

From the Jacobean Dining Room, ascending the stairs one approaches the Tudor Bedroom which contains a four-poster bed and an old court cupboard, a Regency mirror, a Della Robia plate, and some King Charles II chairs.

The second bedroom is known as the Royal Bedroom, and contains the famous Wynn Bed, dated 1570. Its magnificent carved panels, represent passages from the Bible, depicting the Sermon on the Mount, the Nativity, the Flight into Egypt, and the Serpent in the Wilderness.

The four figures on the bed posts are thought to represent Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and the shields on top of the posts are carved with Crossed Foxes and also The Griffin. Carved in the wood are the following quotations.

"To serve God is my only salvation."

"O God protect me through this night."

The Devil's Face between the two feet is to keep away all evil spirits.

The Fireplace

The fireplace is some 12 feet across, and inside the chimney are footholds, which it is believed, were used long ago by small boys who were sent up to sweep inside.

The wrought iron grate was found amongst the ruins when restoration took place, and it is interesting to note that the design on the front is based on the Fleur-de-lys. The beam is part of an oak tree which was washed down the River Conway during flood time, and was later cut up at a local saw-mill. It will be seen that the beam retains its natural curve. The picture on the left is a contemporary painting of Mary Queen of Scots, but the artist is unknown.

The picture on the right is a copy in oils of the famous "Bohemian Girl" by Franz Hals, the original of which hangs in the Louvre in Paris. The room in which the fireplace is situated is used as a cafe, and log fires are very popular with visitors. From this room leads the stone spiral staircase forming part of the original watch tower. This is believed to be the oldest part of the castle, it is not used by the public and leads to a private chapel on the top floor of the building.

The Music Room

Probably the most interesting feature of the house, the roof beams, date back to 1186, when they were built into a small Cistercian Abbey in Conway. A century later, 1292, Edward I required the site on which to build the castle walls. A new site was granted at Maenan and there, using the original timber and stone, the abbey was re-erected under the title "The Vale of Aberconwy Abbey". A small monastery was built at the same place and time. Both buildings were in service until they had to be demolished following Henry VIII's Act of Parliament "The Dissolution of the Monasteries" 1535. The timbers of this roof and the door, believed to be the oldest monastery door in Wales, lay in the open for some years until a member of the Wynn family, who happened to be building this portion of the house at the time, considered it sacrilegious to allow the timber to remain neglected. He had them brought to Gwydir and re-erected under the safety of this roof some 400 years ago.

Adjoining the Royal Bedroom was a low-ceilinged chamber, originally a "ladies-in-waiting" room. In the course of repairing this, the low ceiling was removed and the fine hammer beams and massive timbers came to light.

Now the Music Room, this splendid chamber, so finely restored, contains Arthur Clegg's beloved Blüthner Grand Piano. The furniture includes a Queen Anne wardrobe, Jacobean chest, Adams mirror, early English tallboy circa 1710 and a William and Mary chest of drawers. The tapestries are about 160 years old.

The fireplace at the end conceals a priest-hole.

The Banqueting Hall

At the foot of the spiral stair is the Banquet Hall, a magnificent room with two huge open fireplaces. The ornate chairs are Visitors' Coronation Chairs used at the wedding of King Charles I. The three-quarter length portrait in oils of Sir John Wynn is one of the most important of the recent additions to the Castle. It is believed to have been painted at Gwydir, and has been returned after an interval of some years during which it was cherished by the Mostyn family.

The Banquet Hall was once completely panelled, and the restoration has revealed much of interest, giving light and grace to the hall.

The exit by the Stair-tower gives access to the Courtyard Garden, while the other exit from the Banquet Hall opens onto the Dutch Gardens, with the fountain and an avenue of shaped yew trees, to the lawns where peacocks and many varieties of birds fed from the hands of friendly visitors. The peafowl roost in the tall trees and on the chimney pots, where they are safe from predatory animals. The original pair of peafowl were given to Arthur Clegg by the previous owner, Dr. Kendrick, as a token of admiration for his work of restoration, and there are now more than 50 of them. Their full beauty is seen in the spring, when mating takes place, after which the plumage is shed gradually. Reaching full maturity at four years of age, the peahen lays an average clutch of 4 to 6 eggs which are incubated naturally in a shallow "nest" scratched in the ground.

From the wilderness found by Arthur Clegg, much of the former beauty of the ancient gardens has been recreated. The Tudor Garden by the main gate has small paths lined with low box hedges and shaped box trees, the paths converging like the spokes of a wheel or a Tudor Rose on the centrepiece, an old sundial. Wistaria on the castle walls was brought from China by one of the Wynns. Beyond the gardens and to the left are Cedars of Lebanon, many hundreds of years old, twelve of them planted to commemorate the wedding of Charles I, but some of these have been destroyed by gales in recent years.

In the Royal Garden, oaks were planted to commemorate the visit in 1899 of the Duke and Duchess of York (later to become King George V and Queen Mary), and of the Duke of Cambridge (son of Queen Victoria) and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. Further on, in the Statesmen's Gardens, are other trees planted to record the visits of the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Beauchamp, Viscount Runciman, the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, and Lord Ganford, all guests at one time or another of Earl Carrington. Part of this area is now used as a coach and car park.

At one end of the terrace is an archway built by one of the Wynns to commemorate the end of the Wars of the Roses. By the lower path can be seen the 'Lovers Tree,' a tall yew believed to be over 700 years old, and so called because of the discreet screen provided by its low hanging branches.

And so, restored once again to its old glory, the proud castle of Gwydir which has entertained royalty, as royalty entertains its many visitors.

Introducing Llanrwst

The small town of Llanrwst stands on the western border of Denbighshire at the point, in the Conway valley, where the river Conway forms the boundary between that county and Caernarvonshire. Superbly situated amidst river, woodland and mountain scenery of unsurpassed beauty, Llanrwst is on the fringe of the Snowdonia National Park for which it is an ideal and obvious touring centre. It is served by road and rail and can be quite easily reached from all parts of North and Mid Wales.

Llanrwst's origins go back through many centuries but as its early years were turbulent ones that several times saw the town reduced to ruins, not many ancient buildings survive today. Nevertheless in the old bridge, the parish church and Gwydyr Castle, Llanrwst has three features of more than usual interest. It has, too, strong links with that great architect Inigo Jones for he designed the old bridge, the Gwydyr chapel of the parish church and the original grammar school buildings.

A pleasing stone built town, Llanrwst moves with the times and its new housing areas are attractively designed and built amid pleasant scenery. One of them, in fact, the Caer Felin estate, gained the Llanrwst Urban Council a housing medal for the best urban district housing scheme to be erected in Wales in the years between 1945 and 1950 — a high distinction for a town of only 2,500 people. The town has a busy shopping centre and market, several churches, good schools (including a very old established Grammar School) and excellent hotel accommodation for visitors. Sporting facilities are good including as they do fishing and canoeing on the river Conway. The town has played host to the Royal National Eisteddfod in 1951, and to the Urdd National Eisteddfod in 1968.

Llanrwst, in short, is a town small in area and population but great in tradition and prestige. A place to visit at length and a place ideal for residence.

Historical Notes

The name of Llanrwst is said to derive either from the 'church of St. Rhystyd', of the 4th century, or from the 6th century 'church of St. Grwst'. As the town's Welsh parish church is dedicated to the latter saint this derivation seems to be the most probable.

Llanrwst's history goes back a thousand years to turbulent times when the princes of Southern Wales invaded the Conway valley laying waste the town and losing heavily in the process. This battle, in 954, resulted in the virtual annihilation of both sides. Two centuries later Llanrwst was sacked during Owen Glendower's revolt and was later virtually abandoned for several decades. Grass grew in the streets and deer grazed where the town hall once stood. In the Wars of the Roses it again was the scene of strife and was, once again, almost totally destroyed.

However, despite these misfortunes, Llanrwst survived and in the more peaceful years that followed it grew in importance as a market centre for a wide area and as a prosperous little industrial town. Lead ore was at one time found in the valley and smelting was carried on but this industry has long since died out. The woollen industry grew to importance as did malting, stocking making, tanning and Welsh harp manufacture.

By the mid 19th century, Llanrwst was a town of 3,593 inhabitants and 768 houses — nearly half as big again as it is today. (The decline is, of course, a feature sadly found in many small Welsh towns). An account of the time tells that Llanrwst—

“stands in a pleasant vale amid charming environs at the terminus of the Conway and Llanrwst Railway. It includes a square with town hall and market place; contains many good houses and has, of late years, undergone great improvement. It attracts numerous tourists and other visitors for the sake of the scenery around it and of the splendid salmon fishing in the Conway. It has attracted many opulent persons permanently, whose residences adorn the outskirts. It is a seat of petty sessions and county courts, a polling place and has a post office, railway station, banking office, two chief inns, two churches, four dissenting chapels, a free school, national and British schools, an almshouse and charities of £75”.

Features of Interest

Modern Llanrwst is a pleasing blend of old and new, a traditional stone-built town set in the most delightful scenery of the Conway valley. Although devastations in past centuries robbed it of many old buildings a number still survive to interest the visitor whilst some of the more modern buildings have historic origins.

The Parish Church of St. Crwst stands adjacent to the Conway river whose waters flow immediately beneath the churchyard walls. It is one of the finest of Welsh churches displaying some of the most beautiful carving in the Principality. It was built in the 15th century and replaced a thatched building erected in 1170 and burnt down by raiding troops in 1469. The tower and north aisle were added in the 19th century.

Of note is the beautiful 15th century carved rood screen, one of the finest in Wales, which was brought here from the suppressed abbey of Maenan (an abbey located on the east bank of the Conway river four miles north of Llanrwst). The screen has a rood loft once used as a minstrel gallery. Also outstanding are the reading desk, oak panelling and a unique stone font. Several windows are of note including the east window with its fine Perpendicular tracery. On one wall is a reproduction of a frescoe from the Santa Maria monastery in Milan. On the south wall is the grave slab of Griffith Lloyd who, the inscription tells, was schoolmaster at Llanrwst, then lecturer and later rector. He died in March 1719.

The most famous feature of the church is, however, the Gwydyr Chapel which was built in 1633 by Sir Richard Wynne from a design by Inigo Jones. Many of the Wynnes of Gwydyr are buried here and five of them are remembered by beautifully chased monumental brasses each bearing a portrait. A monument of Sir Richard Wynne, who died in 1649, bears the long pedigree of the Wynnes derived from Owen Gwynedd. To be seen on the floor of the chapel is the large stone coffin of Llewelyn-ap-Iorwerth, son-in-law of King John. This coffin was first placed in Conway Abbey, was then moved to Maenan and then, at that abbey's dissolution, came here to Llanrwst. On the chapel wall hang the spurs which belonged to Dafydd-ap-Jenkin, a local outlaw who achieved notoriety as a North Wales 'Robin Hood'. He sought refuge in a cave near Falcon Rock and legend says that he left buried treasure near this cave. Nearby in the chapel is the effigy of the warrior Goch who fought at Poitiers and who owned the Gwydyr estate before it became the seat of the Wynnes. He was killed in 1388 at Flanders.

Close to the church are a group of almshouses known as the Jesus Hospital. They were founded in 1610 by Sir John Wynne. Here one of the most colourful of the many Llanrwst harp-makers ended his days. He never, however, completed an instrument at his home, as he feared that the ceaseless chatter of the old ladies would affect the tone of the harp.

St. Mary's (English) Church was built in the 19th century but has little of architectural or historical interest to show.

Occupying new buildings on the east side of the town is the old Grammar School which was founded in the 17th century by Sir John Wynn of Gwydyr Castle and which now forms part of the Ysgol Dyffryn Conwy Comprehensive School. It was a free school for local children and Inigo Jones was said to have been the architect of the original buildings. The school today has over 300 pupils and its modern buildings are flanked by extensive playing fields.

Linking Denbighshire with Caernarvonshire is the Old Bridge. This steep and rather inconvenient structure was built in 1636 by Inigo Jones and has long been said to vibrate when bumped in a certain way — despite its broad and massive appearance. According to a guide book of 1863, a man was then generally available to ask strangers if they "wished to have a shake" and for bumping his back against the parapet to make it vibrate visibly he expected to be rewarded by the "wondering visitor." At the west end of the bridge is Tu Hwnt i'r Bont, a 15th century stone house once used as law courts and now a National Trust property leased as a cafe. Within can be seen old Welsh furniture, pottery and bygones including a coracle as used on local rivers.

Inigo Jones is said to have designed bridges throughout North Wales but few, in fact, were his work. He was also said to have been born in Wales (in Llanrwst, so some tales suggest) but, in fact, he was born in London in 1573 of Welsh descent and baptised Ynyr. After studying in Italy he assumed the name of Inigo. Whether or not he was patronised by the Wynnes of Gwydyr is not fully documented but it is probable he did, in fact, design their family chapel, the bridge and the first Llantwst grammar school.

William Salesbury who, in 1563, was granted a patent that gave him sole rights to print the Bible and Prayer Book in Welsh, lived in the town near the present Railway Station. He enjoyed this right, however, only for seven years. A very rough translation in many ways, the Bible was not of great use to ordinary readers for it contained odd Latin phrases and spelling peculiarities that only a scholar such as Salesbury could really appreciate.

Gwydyr Castle

Gwydyr Castle and Park stands across on the west bank of the River Conway and is thus in Caernarvonshire and just beyond the urban district boundary. For centuries this estate was the seat of the Wynn family, benefactors of Llanrwst and a family remembered by monuments in their chapel in the parish church. In the 19th century the house passed to Lord Willoughby D'Eresby, who was hereditary great chamberlain of England, and then to Earl of Ancaster. The name of Gwydyr derives either from Gwy (water) and Tir (land) or from 'Gurned-dir' or the 'bloody land' which is a reference to the battle fought here by Uywarch-Hen in 610.

The castle includes a small part of the mansion built at the foot of Falcon Rock in 1555 by Sir John Wynn. In 1816 much of this house was demolished and the major part of the present structure was then built—in the same style as before but smaller in scale. It was burnt in 1922 and was a ruin until 1943 when it was carefully restored by its present owner, Arthur Clegg. The house contains a fine sequence of Tudor rooms (said in 1863 to be 'sombre and gloomy' however) filled with antiques and works of art of magnificent splendour. Little wonder that the house was called the 'fairest in all North Wales'.

In addition to both 19th century and Tudor work the castle does retain a few fragments of an even earlier building owned by Goch, a famous soldier whose effigy is in the parish church. His prowess with the battle-axe was the talk of all Wales.

Gwydyr Castle stands amid delightful grounds that command delightful views and are enhanced by a lake and waterfall and by many acres of magnificent woods. On the summit of the hill above the house is Upper Gwydyr which was built to shelter those who climbed to enjoy the view. Over the entrance is a Welsh inscription which, translated, means "A conspicuous edifice on Gwydyr Hill towering over the adjacent land; a well-chosen situation, a second paradise, a fair bank, a place of Royalty". The waterfall drops 100 feet and near it is the fountain of St. Albright, a constant stream of icy cold water brought from a reservoir on the side of the mountain. In the gardens and grounds roam over forty famous peacocks, whilst of beauty are the yews, cedars, rhododendrons, lawns and formal gardens. The house and grounds have been open to the public for most of this century. At the present time they are open daily throughout the year from 9.30 a.m. until dusk.

The Wynn (or Wynne) family of Gwydyr were one of the dominant families of North Wales. The first outstanding member was Sir John Wynn, a man who lived frugally yet was a patron of the arts and a lover of beauty. His book 'History of the Gwydyr Family' was written largely to disprove his family's alleged illegitimacy but it is, in fact, a valuable record of an oppressor to his tenants and legend says that his spirit does penance for his sins by being imprisoned under the Swallow Falls at Betws-y-Coed. merged with the Williamses and became the Wynnstay family whose arms were 'two foxes counter-salient'. Thus it is that North Wales has so many Cross Foxes inns and so many Wynnstay Hotels. So powerful was Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, in fact, that he was referred to as the 'Prince in Wales'.

Part of the grounds of Gwydyr Park form a delightful riverside pleasure ground and one that was used in 1951 for the Royal National Eisteddfod. Here are football and cricket grounds, a bowling green and, not far away, a special recreation ground for children. The cricket square is especially attractively sited between river and trees and the old-established Llanrwst Cricket Club play many fixtures here and county games are also held. The bowling and putting greens are nearby. The river itself is well stocked with salmon and trout and has recently gained favour as a canoeing river. In addition to the old bridge it is spanned by the new Gower's Bridge, a beautifully designed suspension footbridge with stone abutments and a lattice work parapet. The bridge gives access to Trefriw.

The Conway Valley

Llanrwst is the ideal centre for exploring the beautiful Vale of Conway, a valley whose left bank is in Caernarvonshire and whose right bank is in Denbighshire (At Maenan, however, Caernarvonshire extends across the river to take in a few square miles).

North of Llanrwst the river, ever widening until it reaches the sea near the historic town of Conway, winds and turns in a level pastoral valley nearly a mile wide. On either side, however, mountains rise, those on the west side reaching to over 3,000 feet.

On the Denbighshire side, about three miles north of Llanrwst, is Maenan, a wooded area where are found rather scant ruins of the Cistercian Abbey that existed here until the Dissolution. The abbey was founded in 1282 when monks came here from Aberconway. Foundations of the abbey church have been revealed as have burial vaults and a ruined dovecote. Some of the abbey buildings have been incorporated into Maenan Farm including the refectory and medieval timbers of the 16th century. Fragments of carved masonry have also been built into Maenan Hall, a mansion built in 1848 by Lord Newburgh on the abbey's actual site. Towering above Maenan is a rocky outcrop known as Cader Ifan Goch, a peak given anonymously to the National Trust in 1951.

Farther north on the same side of the valley are Bodnant Gardens, another National Trust property. The home of Lord Aberconway, Bodnant's beautiful grounds are among the loveliest in the world and especially worth a visit when the magnolias and rhododendrons are in flower. Situated above the lower reaches of the Conway the gardens afford magnificent views of the Snowdon Range. Laid out in 1875 by Henry Pochin the gardens were extended by his grandson, the second Lord Aberconway. Today the gardens total 70 acres and include a garden house that was moved here from Gloucestershire. The gardens are open from 1.30 to 4.45 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Bank Holiday afternoons from April to October.

On the west bank of the Conway valley just north of Llanrwst is Trefriw, a village set beneath wooded slopes of great beauty. Llewelyn the Great had a house at Trefriw but no trace remains of it today. Llewelyn is said to have built the church here to please his wife, Princess Joan, who disliked having to journey to the nearest church which was at Llanrhychwyn, to the west of Trefriw. Llewelyn used to worship at Llanrhychwyn and the small typical Welsh stone church is still in existence today, simple in design and several centuries old.

Trefriw is well known for its chalybeate springs and it is also the highest navigable point on the Conway river. At one time boat building was carried on here but the craft has now long since died out. The village is also the nearest one to the mountain lakes that extend west towards Bethesda. Llyn Crafnant (now a reservoir for Llanrwst) and Llyn Geirionydd are the two nearest lakes, beautifully set amid mountain scenery and affording excellent fishing. On Geirionydd's banks is a monument to the Taliesin, the 6th century bard of legendary fame who is, however, not buried here but in Cardiganshire. Farther west are other lakes—some, like Llyn Eigiau and Llyn Cowlyd are extensive but others are little more than small pools set in lonely mountain dells. Few of them are accessible except to hikers. Several of them provide water for towns on the North Wales coast and others provide reserves of water for the hydro-electric station at Dolgarrog, a village between Trefriw and Conway.

North of Dolgarrog and on the same western side of the valley is the small village of Roe-wen. Here is the garden of Gilfach, a small garden of great botanical interest. The gardens are open every weekday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. from April through to September.

South of Llanrwst the Conway valley narrows as the mountains close in. Here, at the foot of the mountains and amid several square miles of forestland is Betws-y-Coed, a beauty spot known the world over. Aptly meaning 'Sanctuary in the Wood', Betws-y-Coed has one of the oldest parish churches in Wales, a place now only used for weddings and funerals but worthy of a visit for it contains a fine monument of Gruffydd ap Dafydd Goch, a relative of Llewelyn the Last.

Woods, waterfalls and bridges are all features of Betws-y-Coed. The beautiful Swallow Falls and Pandry Falls are cataracts set amid woodland scenery of unmatched splendour. The three bridges are the 15th century stone Pont-y-Pair (partly attributed to Inigo Jones but not likely to be his work), the wooden Miners' Bridge built to enable miners to reach the former lead mines across the valley and the iron bridge built in 1815 and known as Waterloo Bridge. Other beauty spots in the area also include the Fairy Glen, Conway Falls and the Roman Bridge. Farther south are well over forty square miles of glorious mountain scenery that belongs to the National Trust and that includes Llyn Conwy, a lake 1,488 feet up and the source of the Conway river. Included in this area is Ysphyty-Ifan, a village on the uppermost reaches of the River Conway where once the knights of St. John had a hospice.

Llanrwst is on the eastern edge of the Snowdonia National Park, an area covering over eight hundred square miles of the Snowdon Range and its surrounding hills, woods, valleys and waterfalls. The park, formed in 1951, extends into Caernarvonshire, Denbighshire and Merionethshire. Llanrwst is an ideal centre from which to explore it and, appropriately enough, was the first town to have a National Park Information Centre — opened here nine years ago.

THE COUNTRY CODE

THOSE who do not fully understand the country way of life can easily do harm by thoughtless and careless actions. For example, it is not sufficiently realised that a gate left open will invite animals to stray from their field: they may then damage crops or suffer harm themselves, or involve you in an accident. The unsightliness of litter left discourteously behind all too often spoils the beauty of a scene for others: some may cause painful injury to humankind and animals, or damage costly farm machinery. So when you are out and about in country places please follow these rules for good country behaviour from the Country Code prepared by the National Parks Commission :

GUARD AGAINST ALL RISK OF FIRE

FASTEN ALL GATES

KEEP DOGS UNDER PROPER CONTROL

KEEP TO THE PATHS ACROSS FARM LAND

AVOID DAMAGING FENCES, HEDGES AND WALLS

LEAVE NO LITTER

SAFEGUARD WATER SUPPLIES

PROTECT WILD LIFE, WILD PLANTS AND TREES

GO CAREFULLY ON COUNTRY ROADS
